The Frightful Disaster to the Falls City.

THE SWATHE OF DEATH. Buildings Scattered Like Chaff.

DETAILS OF THE CASUALTY. The Ravages of the Storm in Other Places.

Louisville, Ky., March 28.-Retween 8 and 9 o'clock last night a tornado struck this city from southwest, to northeastward, leaving death and destruction everywhere. Outside of the clearly defined limits, the citizens knew only of the heavy rain, accompanied by a high wind. Soon came the alarm of fire from different stations, and the horrors of the calamity began to dawn on the people.

Houses, halls of amusement, railroad stations, all went down before the mighty powers of the air. The storm soon passed on, the clouds scattered, and the moon cast its light over the sorely-stricken city.

Relief parties were soon organized. The whole force of the fire department was at

LOSS OF LIFE LARGE.

At this writing no definite statement can be made of the loss of life, but it is large. It is impossible that so wide a sweep of territory, covered with ruined homes, with the wreck of halls and buildings of every character, does not contain many dead. Enough is known to show that Louisville has been visited by a most appalling calamity.

The wrecked portion of the city lies between Eighteenth and Broadway, Seventh and Main streets. The destroying elements passing diagonally across the section, which is probably a mile square. At least 200 houses are in ruins. It is feared that at least 200 lives are Probably the greatest loss of life occurred at Falls City hall, which was in the center of the

In the lower rooms of the hall were fifty or seventy-five children with their mothers and other relatives, taking dancing lessons. There were at least 125 persons on the lower floors and seventy-five more attending a lodge meet ing on an upper floor, when the terrible wind swept down upon the building. The entire structure was in five minutes a shapeless mass of brick and morter, burying 200 victims, of which number a few escaped uninjured.

Conservative estimates place the loss of life at this place at 100, while reports indicate the number nearer 200. THE WORK OF RESCUE.

At 2 o'clock this morning thirty-five bodies had been taken from this ruin, and fifteen wounded and dying. Only those on the third floor had been reached, the room containing the dancing school, pupils and visitors not yet

It is very evident that it was a cyclone, as its affects were so wide-spread. For miles in either direction of the city roofs were torn and trees lifted out of the ground by the wind. As the train sped toward the fated city, bearing Associated Press representatives from Indian apolis, evidences were first noticeable fully fifty miles out. First came to view an occasional dead tree broken into pieces, then larger and more substantial trees and finally monarchs of the forest. Many of the little town along the Jeffersonville, Madison and Indian apolis railroad were fairly stripped of their signs, and ginger-bread work.

A TRAIN ON ITS SIDE.

A few miles south of Henryville, about two miles from Louisville, lay an engine, its great corners plunged into a bed of soft yellow mud On the opposite side lay a massive tender, and beyond it two coaches tipped over on their sides. It was the wreck of train No. 6, a combination which runs between Indianapolis and Louisville. The train was making the best time possible in the heavy wind when it struck a birch tree that had been torn up and flung across the track. No one was injured.

THE PEOPLE IN THE STREET. When the scene of the disaster was reached an appalling sight was presented. Crowds of people thronged Fourteenth street station. and from there up Main street to the heart of the city was a mass of humanity, dodging horses, street cars and all sorts of vehicles in the middle of the street. On either side was wreck and ruin of brick, having the appear ance of having simply crumbled to earth Gangs of rescuers worked like gophers on the great masses of debris in search for human victims. Here and there lay a dead mule, with clots of blood at their nostrils, that had been dragged from the ruins of the great tobacco houses, of which they are the most common adjunct in this southern city. Women and men darted before the mad horses whose hoofs it seemed would crush them to death.

POLICEMEN WERE POWERLESS. Burly policemen were stationed at street crossings to prevent people from attempting to pass through the rained thoroughfare, where the partially wrecked walls stood as a menace to human life, but their efforts were futile. Men, women and children made their way down the dangerous streets with astounding recklessness. The morbid crowd was not to be held back in its wild desire to satisfy curiosity, and it was a sight worth their efforts to The wreck was so great that it oeggars attempt at detail. Immediately upon the burst

Within ten minutes a posse appeared at Falls City hall. The walls of the adjoining house were first prop-ped, and then began the work of cutting through the heavy slate roof that covered all. At first the work was difficult and laborious, on account of the anxious muititude that thronged about the wreck. Women were found digging at the slate with their fingers, almost crazed. Every one did noble work. After an hour of ceaseless labor, the first victim-Mrs. Sarah Kelleyfound sitting in an upright position, her head bruised and arm broken. She said trance. Women were knock ed down and trampled on in the mad haste to escape.
Seeing an overwhelming jam at the door, several remained behind. The last she saw of her friends was just before each others arms were drawnout of the debris. James Hassom, whose wife had been at the lodge meeting, was foremost in the work, and the first person whom he drew out of the ruined building was his wife, who died in his arms. He laid her by the side of the others, who were dead and continued to work for the

SUFFOCATED BY GAS.

Inside of the next half hour, thirty men and women were drawn out dead, but with no wounds on their bodies and it is thought all met their death from suffocation. The gas pipes had been broken which caused the lights to go out, and which saved the ruins from fire for the time, but flooded the debris with vapor almost as deadly as the fire might have proven. Ways were pierced into the ruins and the bodies drawn out dead and dving. One part of the building was reserved for the dead, but the wounded were taken into stores and houses on the opposite side of the street, where physicians and priests administered to the souls and bodies.

Along Main street the pathway of the storm extended from Sixth to Eleventh street, and from Seventeenth to Eleventh and not a single building was left standing. RUINS OF TOBACCO WAREHOUSES.

Occasionally a massive stone or iron front still stood intact, while the entire structure proper had been swept entirely away. This morning it presented the most stupendous spectacle of disaster and ruin ever witnessed. In the course of the storm lay the prided tobacco market of the city, and today the warenouses, almost to the last one, are in ruins. They include the Kentucky, Pickett's, Ninth street, Falls City, Phænix, Greenover, Louisville, Enterprise, Central and Planters. - The destruction of the Louisville and Ninth street warehouses could not possibly have been more complete. Thousands of hogsheads of tobacco lay in the mass of brick and mortar, some in view, others buried from sight beneath the

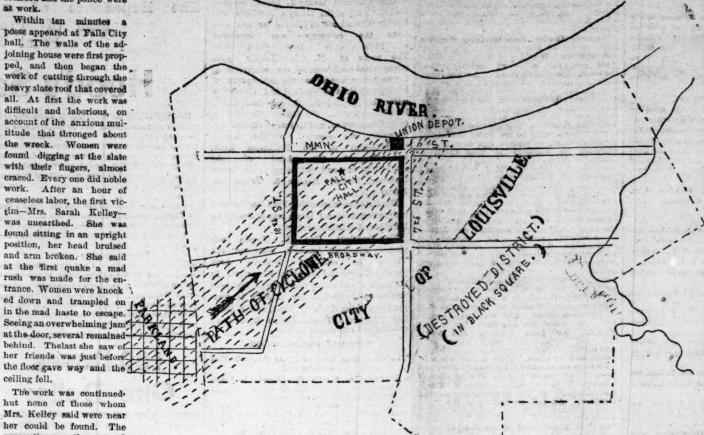

LOUISVILLE HOTEL TNROOPED. Louisville hotel, between Sixth and Seventh was unroofed and otherwise wrecked, while the building west, occupied as a cigar store upon the first floor and sleeping rooms on the second and third, was razed entirely to the ground, not a single brick remaining in place. In the destruction of this house many live were lost, principally of persons who occupied sleeping rooms there. Many of them were young girls employed at the hotel next door. Saloons and other available places have een turned into hastily improvised morgues where the bodies are taken as fast as received and left, awaiting identification. Patro wagons are being pressed into service as dead wagons to convey the corpses to the required

Eleventh street seemed to serve as a kind of flue for the storm, as all intercepting objects in that line are practically reduced to nothing ness. As it rushed down this street it carried with it the fronts of buildings, which were mostly residences, on each side, leaving in many instances furniture and other contents anmolested. Frequently from the center of ome three-sided dwelling an unbroken chan-

ALONG JEFFERSON AND MARKET. Jefferson and Market streets are in almost as bad a condition as Main, and hundreds of wagons are busy carting away the soiled and proken furniture from what were homes yes terday, but are no longer. The massive trees in the park on Jefferson street have been twisted and broken like reeds, and lay crossed and piled upon each other. Everywhere in track of the storm is wreck and ruin The Carpenter Annear Iron works on Eight street—a four story building—was blown down and only a few feet of the walls remain stand

The wholesale liquor establishment of J. F. Brown & Sons, on the corner of Eighth and Main streets, fell, and instantly the liquors caught fire and caused an awful conflagration. The building consisted of five stories, and was comparatively a new structure. By hard work, the firemen managed to control the blaze, des-pite the character of the fif that filled it. The buildings adjacent to were considerably torn up, and it is quite positive that several dead bodies lay beneath the ruins.

DAMAGE ON MAIN STREET. The great building, No. 745 Main street, occupied by S. F. Gunther, tobacco broker, H. R. Toewater and James W. Prather, was Several men were injured in the que store of Charles Rosenheim & Co., at 745, and others in the wreck of Johnston Brothers' wholesale grocery, and that of Moore, Bre-maker & Co. The Ironstore and Tin com-pany, W. H. Neman's wholesale grocery, Dunlap Bros. & Co.'s saddlery store, and the wholesale clothing establishment of Levy, Newberger & Co., and a large number of others have lost their roofs.

A LOOK DOWN BROADWAY The storm seemed only to have swept Broadway from Fifteenth to Ninth, but nearly all the houses between these streets and on intersecting streets were demolished. Most of the cottages, however, and low frame building escaped without serious injury. From Fifteenth to Sixteenth are mostly small frame houses occupied by colored families. Roofs were torn off, but not a great amount of damage was done and none of the occupants were hurt. From Sixteenth down to Nineteenth, however, the destruction was terrible. Peter Spetsh and family, who live at 1603, were quietly seated in their parlor when the storm burst with all its fury. The building swayed and tottered, and finally the walls of the second story fell. All of the family remained huddled in the hall way and escaped without injury. The furniture and building were destroyed.

Adjoining is the residence of Mrs. Welsh,

1605. It was literally demolished. THE NARROW ESCAPE. From the appearance of the crumbled mass of ruins this morning, one could never suppose that only yesterday it was a beautiful dwelling. By almost a miracle, members of the family escaped. Mrs. John Brown lived at No. 1617. Her house received the full force of crumbled like so much paper. The lady herself was caught by falling timbers and pinioned to the ground, but her husband succeeded in extricating her. She was not seriously in-

At 1619 lived Mrs. Shultz, in a fine twostory brick building. It was leveled, and, to-gether with all it contained, is a total loss. Members of the family opened the door ran out when they heard the crash, thus barely saving their lives.

CATHOLIC BUILDINGS DESTROYED. Catholic buildings at Seventeenth and Broadway, were the Sisters' home, the parochial school, Father Disney's residence and Sacred Heart church. They were all blown down, and Sister Pius was buried in the ruins Shortly after, when taken out by a rescuing party, she was dead. All of the other sisters escaped without injury.

A Water Famine Inevitable. THE STAND PIPE THROWN DOWN BY THE STORM.

LOUISVILLE, March 28.—Chief Engineer

Hermany visited the waterworks this afternoon, and found that the stand pipe had been completely blown down, but no other damage had been done. This, itself, however, is enough, for it will soon leave the city without water. No pumping can be done and there is only about enough water in the reservoir to last for five days. At the the end of that time public wells will have to supply the demand. The money damage to the waterworks is about $20,000, but it is impossible to repair in time to prevent a water famine.

This afternoon, President Long issued a notice to all water consumers that, with the exception of the fire department, all the water supply would be turned off for a week, or until the repairs are completed. In the meantime, the public is assured that these repairs will be prosecuted as diligently as possible.

No Outside Aid Needed THE BOARD OF TRADE MEETS AND ORGANIZES

LOUISVILLE, March 28.—The board of trade

Louisville, March 28.—The board of trade meeting, held this morning, authorizes the statement that there will be no call for aid from the outside. The property loss is estimated at $500,000 to $1,000,000. The deaths will number one hundred and fifty.

A well attended meeting of the board of trade was held at noon today with the intention of discussing some measures for the relief of sufferers, President William Cornwall, Jr., presiding. A relief committee of fifty members was selected by the president, and they consented to serve. It was decided that four members should be assigned to each square, and all parts of the wrecked districts be visited. An estimate of damages will be immediately made, and the first help extended to the people in destitute condition. Then the committee will turn its attention to repairing damages.

effort to assist those needing help. An executive committee of seven was also selected to secure homes for those who are homeless. Within a few minutes after the passage of these resolutions $15,000 had been subscribed. Norton infirmary has consented to take care of as many injured as possible free of charge. A meeting of the general relief committee of the board of trade was held at 6 p. m. Reports were heard from canvassing committees. The city council had a letter officially added to the committee so as to secure unanimity of action. They were represented unanimity of action. They were represented in the executive committee by Councilmen Stall and Tyler. Chief of Police Taylor was present to represent Mayor Jacob, who is ex-officio member of the executive committee. emcio member of the executive committee. Reports showed that the total subscription was $20,000, to which is added $20,000 voted as relief appropriation by the city council. It was determined by resolution to use the citizens subscriptions at once and to reserve the $20,00 voted by the council till private aid had been exhausted.

WHILE THE RELATIVES OF THE DEAD STAND

BY AND WRING THEIR HANDS. The work of rescuing the mangled dead bodies goes bravely on. A hundred anxious men worked as they never worked before for the bodies of their wives, fathers, mothers, the bodies of their wives, fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters, that lie buried in the shapeless mass of brick and mortar that covers the site where, yesterday, stood the Falls City hall. The cries of men, women and children rend the air on every side. A surging crowd of ten thousand people blocks the streets for squares about the scene of the catastrophe. A large force of police guards the avenues to keep back the pressing masses of curious humanity that are gradually forcing their way to the awful scene of the calamity.

that are gradually forcing their way to the awful scene of the calamity.

Bodies, mangled and shapeless beyond recognition, are being dragged from beneath the ruins every few minutes. Coroner Miller stands at the door of his temporary morgue, in the McGrathiana saloon, opposite the wreck, directing the disposition of bodies found. At many places towering walls of brick are oscillating in the air, ready to descend at any moment. These points of danger are guarded by the police and Louisville Legion.

At midnight the opening up of a portion of the debris of Fall City hall, caused a draught the penetrate the ruins, whereupon the smouldering fire broke out with tremendous fierceness. It spread rapidly and forced the workers to desert the pile. Several lines of hose were soon throwing water on the flames, but it was more than an hour before the work could be pro-ceeded with and then it was carried on with much difficulty on account of the heat.

Up to 12 o'clock only about thirty-five dead bodies and twenty-five wounded and dying were taken from the wreck.

LOOKING FOR HIS FAMILY. At about 11:30 o'clock the room where the children were dancing was reached. Louis Simms, Jr., of 1124 market street, had for hours been moving about in an agony of grief in front of that porrion of the wreck where his room had been, for his wife and four little children were there. When the room was reached, Mrs. Simms was the first one found, and she was fatally hurt. Then, within about fifteen minutes of each other, three of the Simms children were recovered. They were unconscious, and there is only a faint sibility of their living. While the father was implering the workers to get his other child, the fire broke out and the work was suspended.

STATEMENT OF A SURVIVOR. A thrilling experience was that of George H.Capits, of No. 143 Stewart avenue, who was resent at the meeting of Jewel lodge No. 2, Knights and Ladies of Honor, in their lodge room, on the top floor of Falls City hall when the building collapsed. He says:

"The first intimation of danger we had were two distinct rockings of the building, about which times a decreasing to the building, about

"Meanwhile, the shrieks and groans of those still imprisoned by the wreck formed a chorus that, in connection with the howling of the storm, made my very heart sick. I was, so far as a hasty examination went, comparatively uninjured, and at once returned over the ruins with several men to the rear of the place and extinguished the fire that had begun to blaze fiercely. By this time the rain was falling in torrents. The vivid lighting flashes only gave mo vivid ngnung mashes only gave momentary views of the position of the ruins and blinded

"The entire building collapsed in front and rear of the east and west side walls. Nothing was standing above the second story. There were nearly a hundred members present at our lodge meeting, as several candidates were up for initiation. Fully two-thirds of those there were ladies. Besides our lodge, another order was holding a meeting on the same floor with us. A German band was rehearing on the second floor, and a party of decorators were at work in the large hall on that floor, preparing for some entertainment.

"So far as I could judge when I had succeeded in escaping, there were less than a dozen, all told, who got out unhurt, and the cries for help and groans that issued from the broken and twisted heap was proof that scores were still there unable to escape. TAKEN FROM THE WRECK.

BET UP FOR THE RETURN OF THE FALSE CHRIST.

The Liberty County Negroes Revive Their olly of Last Summer, and Are Pre-paring for the Imposter's Return.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 28 .- [Special.]-Night after night, for the past two weeks, sor of the deluded followers of the lunatic, Bell, now confined at Milledgeville, and the dead "King Solomon," who succeeded him as the leader of "The Wilderness Worshippers," in Liberty county, have been building huge pyres of pine logs and lighting them when darkness

TO LIGHT HIS WAY. Some one told them that their Saviour might have returned to them if the road not been so dark for so many hours. It is to light his way that the fires are made, and a revival weird scenes of last August is threatened. Already the negroes are talking over the expected second coming of Bell. THEIR FAITH NEVER FAILED.

The faith of many of the crazy negroes in the false Christ never entirely left them. They gave up their meetings through fear of violence, but apparently still cherished the hope that one or the other of them would return to lead them in the march to the promised land. The lesson taught them months ago, however, was so salutary that the new movement is not spreading with great rapidity. Though they may believe in his speedy advent, they are afraid to express themselves or gather together in any great numbers to hasten the event by prayers and

THE PINCH OF POVERTY. Another thing, too, that has served to hold their arder in check is the memory of the hard times they had during the winter. The pinch of poverty was never so bitter as during the past few months. Some would actually starved but for the kindness of neighbors and storekeepers, who took the risk of advancing them goods on mortgages on sible future crops. The latter especially, will try their best to crush out any new demonstration in its incipiency, and the negroes who have been keening the fires burning of late, will probably soon receive a pretty strong hint that they must stop.
A FIELD FOR MISSIONARIES.

"So credulous are the negroes in the black belt, from the Savannah, Florida and Western road to the coast." said a Liberty county man this morning. "that if a white man chose to do so he could again play them for all they are worth. Just let a fellow with a wig of long lair and a glib tongue appear among them, say he is Christ and begin worship and inside of a week the turmoil of last summer would be outdone. Talk about sending missionaries and teachers to educate the heathen in far away islands, it seems to me it would be a little more sensible and decidedly more of a benefit to the south and America, to send a regiment of them down into Liberty county to work among the rice field negroes. If there are any heathen that are worse than a big lot of them the attempt to elevate them would be

THE CALHOUN COUNTY RIOTERS.

The Trial of the Criminals to Be Taken Up

MORGAN, Ga., March 28 .- [Special.]-Yesterday the county county of this (Calhoun) county convened for its regular monthly session. The first cases called were those against the rioters of January 28th, which occurred here the day Poik Newton was to hang, but was respited by the governor. Sol Rowell and Bill Richardson, charged with the murder of Mr. John Arnold, on that day, are in Albany jail, where they will remain until June term

At the February term of the county court, Henry Madison plead guilty to riot and was fined $40 or six months on the chaingang. His fine was paid by his employer, Mr. I. Simmons.

When the cases were called yesterday morning, Mat and Thomas Gregg, the negroes who caused the riot, demanded indictment by the grand jury, and they were put under a bond of $300 each to appear before the next superior court. In the cases against the rest of the rioters, eight in number, a jury was demanded, which continued those cases till the next session of the court—fourth Monday in April next. Only one of them accused of paractic testical testing the paractic courts. April next. Only one of them accused of par-ticipation in the riot, Jeff Graves, was put on trial. He was adjudged guilty and sentenced to "six months in the chaingang, or fine of ten dollars and costs." The defendtz are represented by Attorneys J. J. Bec d George H. The Shocking Crime of a Mother in Warren County.

WARRENTON, Ga., March 28.—[Special.]—
Coroner I. D. Fuller passed through this place from the lower part of the county. He related to your correspondent a most brutal case of infanticide. An old negro woman on going into her garden yesterday morning discovered a piece of cloth spread over something, and on nemoving it, it revealed to her the lifeless form of a new-born babe. Its head was bruised in several places and its neck broken. She picked it up and carried it to her house. She lives in one end of a tenement honse, and in the other end there lives an unknown girl that has been in the community for only a short time. She is not known to any one, nor does any one in the community for only a short time. She is not known to any one, nor does any one know where she came from. She gives her name as Henrietta Yarbrough. On being asked if she knew anything of the dead baby the said it was hers. The jury's decision was that the babe came to its death by a blow from its mother. And as soon as she is able the brutal mother will be brought to this place and jailed.

Another Candidate for the Legislature. Another Candidate for the Legislature.

BLBERTON, Ga., March 28.—[Special.]—Mr.

B. B. Tate has announced himself a candidate to represent Elbert county in the next legislature. Mr. Tate is chairman of the brard of commissioners of roads and revenues of Elbert county, and has been since its organization some fifteen years ago. He has also served a term as ordinary of the county, was a soldier in Benning's brigade and was very seriously wounded during the war, from which he has never recovered. For the last ten or twelve years he has been in the mercantile business in Elberton, but has withdrawn from business this year.

DAVISBORO, Ga., March 28.—[Special.]—At 9 o'clock last night the storehouse occupied by Mr. H. H. Kilpatrick, as a family grocery, was burned with all its contents. The house was a large two-story wooden building, and Dr. A. A. Chance used a portion of the first dioor as a drug store, while his family lived upstairs. The origin of the fire is unknown, the first alarm being the explosion of a keg of powder, which brought the house to the ground. Dr. Chance's family were just ready to retire for the night, and their escape from the building after the fall, with slight injury, was simply miraculous.

GOVERNOR'S DAY

AT THE GREAT SOUTHERN CHAU-TAUQUA IN ALBANY.

the Southern People to the Govern-ment-The Military Pageant.

ALBANY, Ga., March 28 .- [Special.]-This has been one of the grandest days ever re-corded in the annals of Albany. It was Governer's day at the Georgia Chan tauqua.

From an early hour this morning every thoroughfare leading to the city was crowded with vehicles, and every railroad train brought hundreds of passengers. Albany has never been so crowed with visitors, our city never so animated. At least ten thousand people were here to participate in and enjoy the exercises of the day.

THE MILITARY PAGEANT. During last night and early this morning military companies arrived from the surrounding cities to take their places in the Fourth Georgia battalion. At about 11 o'clock the military pageant formed, and down the business streets they came with much pomp and circumstance. The order of march of the governor's escort, was as follows:

Marshal, C. H. Camfield, and his aides, Messrs. N. F. Tift, J. F. Forrester, A. P.

INTRODUCING THE GOVERNOR. As the governor reached the platform of the Chautauqua the thousands in the great tent tabernacle were wild with enthusiasm. While all were standing the chorus sang the anthem,

Dr. Duncan then introduced the distinguished guest, speaking of him as a man with the heart of a lion and the heart of a child. He received his brilliant record when he fought his way in battle from the bars of a captain next to the highest position, lieutenant general of the armies of the south. A man, a king and emperor in the hearts of the children a king in the hearts of those who know and

The grand Chautauqua salute was given and the chorus sang Dixie. Cheer, after cheer rent the air, and it was several minutes before the governor could begin his address.

GOVERNOR GORDON'S SPEECH. Governor Gordon said: "I thank my eloquent friend for his too partial tribute, and you, my brethren, for the generous reception you have accorded me. I can only say in respon to it that whatever I have been in the past what I have been to the south in peace and in war, I will be to the end. [Cheers.] Your command was a command. It compelled instant acceptance, because it came from a people to whom I owe a debt of gratitude. He spoke of the Chautauqua brought by northen men of extended hought and a feeling of sublime fraternity and therefore of religion, transferred here, and fostered and sustained by southern sentiment. I was led by an uncontrollable impulse to one subject. Sectional fraternity is essential to institutional freedom. The first proposition is that there is safety in concord and danger in discord. It should be an axiom in our politics that they should be for every people. They would be converted into quivering quicksands if the people are divided by sectional lines. Our free institutions have already passed ar era of passion and of bloody conflict. I draw a future from the paradox of human govern-ment, having emerged from an era of political and sectional passion, and entering into a stronger union and with a wider peace. I beg you, my countrymen, north or south, not to be deceived by this anomaly in government. Do not be lulled or flattered that the dangers are still behind us.

There already appears some clouds not sectional in their nature. There are mighty problems to be solved, less, perhaps in this section than in any other. This republic, stretching its arms to the weary and heavy laden of all lands, have brought a tide of anarchy agrarianism and communism. Already one fair city of this country has been threatene with blood and anarchy and terror. What are you going to do with a government, with its money in the hands of a few. How check the power of immense corporations? The old maxim: Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty was never more true than at this hour. No greater or nobler political truth was ever the tendent of Algernon Sydney—"the highest concern of humanity, next to the Christian religion, is human government."

Think you the church of Christ would survive it heat and he was the church of highest concern of humanity, next to the Christian religion, is human government." Think you the church of Christ would survive if brotherly love in its members would die, if faith in a crucified Saviour or belief in its practice be lost? What would become of Christianity if you blotted out the love of Christ? It would become but a receptacle of dead men's bones, and what would become of this country if its written laws be disregarded? Love is the foundation of a republic, fidelity to its constitution and its laws. Let passion rule; let the constitution be ignored for party ends, and I tell you your proud boast of a government for the people and by the people will become but a hollow mockery—a sounding pretense. I do not despair of this republic unless malice and sectional estrangement between these people be a legacy to our children by the unhappy war. I would despair if I did not see through the clouds that surround us the light of a better day. Truth shall ultimately triumph, justice shall prevail and liberty live.

The second point was, why is it that the demon of sectional disparagement will not down at the bidding of patriotism. Again and again, on centennial occasions, have we been invited to his funeral. We thought we had buried him so deep that no political trump, however deep-sounding, could awake him to party service again. First and foremost among the things that divide some people in this country and keeps alive a modicum of power, is what is unfortunately called the race problem. For myself, I believe in no such problem. For inself, I believe in no such problem. Agitation begets suspicion in the pulse, I fail to discover it. But for the agitation of the subject, both north and south, which I deeply deplore, we should know no such problem. Agitation begets suspicion in the minds of both people, begets alteration, the fomenter of strife. If the agitation could close, if the large hearted, liberty loving, justice serving people be let alone, and this question be remanded to the men and women of both races, they would solve it wisely and practically with justice to both races, and to the best interest of our cherished republic. My rule is to be honest. I want to say that this problem, if a problem, will eventually be solved according to God Almighty's providence and human experience. We intend, God being our helper, to follow for the future that luminous track in which the white race is the leader of all races, in bringing to this the highest attainments in human government. God has taught in his providence, as shown in his chosen race, that he could lead men through the wilderness to the Canaan of human liberty.

chosen race, that he could lead men through the wilderness to the Canaan of human liberty.

Governor Gordon drew inspiring parallels from nature of the survival of the strong and mighty. Would you hew down the great oak, the cedar of Lebanon, that the black jack may survive? Are you going to let slip through the hands of this mighty race, the power, to that of an inferior race. If such an experiment be tried, you are going to violate no law, and keep the peace as long as in you lies to do injustice to no man or race. Bounding your faith upon his omnipotent decrees, you are going to try every lawful and peaceable means to control this country, and transmit its blessings to your children. What about the ballot? My good friends of the north, if I judged you as you judge me, I would show that more ballots are suppressed with you than with us. I think it better, I know it's better for you, for the colored race, for the south, better for the permanency of this great republic, that intelligence should rule its destinies. He demonstrated that the black man had full justice in southern courts. He pointed to their homes, their churches, schools, their military organizations in proof that their rights were protected. He showed that the south should love the union, that, by her munificence and under southern executives, she had

He showed that the south should love the union, that, by her munifi-cence and under southern executives, she had made immense contributions to her vast do-main, from the Rocky Mountains to the Pamain, from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific section, eight times as large as the original thirteen states. The south went to war from no hatred for the union, but, as they thought, for their defense, and when the end came, the south came back and opened its eyes on one wide waste of desolation and of blood. With a face beaming with hope they repaired the waste places, and are now standing on Pisgah, looking over to Canaan. I do not believe there is enough power in party politics to check our coming together. As well try to dam up the Flint river in its march to the gulf. We cannot check the decree that we should be brethren in a great government by the King of peace them. The house and furniture are destroyed. Major Galt is uninjured but his wife is dangerously ill from the shock.

Three lives were lost at the corner of Eighteenth and Maple streets. The killed were John Emerick, forty years old; his daughter, four years old, and James Fitsporald, a neighbor. Emerick kept a greery. The building was a frame one, only two stories high. At the first gust of wind the walls doubled up and the roof dropped in. The building was a frame one, only two stories high. At the first gust of wind the walls doubled up and the roof dropped in. Emerick was crushed by falling timber, and was taken out dead a short time afterward. His wife was extricated in an unconscious condition. Later in the night, a searching party saw a tiny hand protruding from the debris, and the mangled corpse of a baby soon lay beside its dead father.

Fitzgerald, who was a Louisville and Nashville brakeman, and boarded across the street, was missed this morning, and a search in the ruins was made for him. About 8 o'clock his blackened and bruised corpse was dug out of the ruins.

The two top stories of Hamberger, Strong & Co.'s four-story building are demolished.

Moore & Stark, Julius Louchheim, Louis Grauman, and a printing establishment on the northwest corner of Seventh and Main streets suffered considerably. The large building occupied by the Falls City bank and other firms escaped with a Jamaged roof and windows.

The immense building occupied by Harbison & Gastright, at Nos. 707 and 709, was blown in, and the property damaged many thousand dollars. dollars.

The large building occupied by L. Moses

The large building occupied by L. Moses, wholesale clothing dealer, was entirely demolished by a collapse to the street.

A thrilling experience was that of Mrs. Mary Roemell, who kept a dry goods store at Colgan and Seventeenth streets. Her house was a new brick. At the time of the storm, her nephew, Willie Killmier, was with her. When the walls began to shake and threaten to fall, both rushed to the front door just as the whirlwind was passing. It gathered in both, and carried them into the air a distance of forty feet. They were hurled against a fence, and remained unconscious until they were found by mained unconscious until they were found by neighbors a few minutes later. Both will recover. The house was destroyed and not a thing will be saved.

The residence of Daniel Hemlock, 1510 Seventeenth street, was a large brick structure, yet it was swept away as if it were paper. The family escaped.

McCullam's stables were swept out of existence, and the horses and wagons were scattered and lost. Charles Beck had a wholesale grocery at Charles Beck had a wholesale grocery at Seventeenth and Maple streets, but it was leveled to the ground. There was no one in the building at the time. I all the entire western portion of Parkland, which lies just beyond the southwestern limits of the city, was wrecked. The terrible funnel-shaped cloud was seen approaching up the river by several persons, who say it looked like a black double funnel with the narrowest part in the middle. Its rear could be heard long before it struck the city, and people were alarmed by it.

At the corner of Sixteenth and Magazine streets, in Louisville, three men were caught in the falling timbers of the two-story greecry and barroon of Nick Phienemen, and burned entirely to a black and charred mass. They were Bud Sullivan, Will Deemer and Ben Schildt, the first two laborers, and the latter an underthe first two laborers, and the latter an under Seven people were in the house at the time. Phienemen, the owner, escaped with his life alone, being badly burned and bruised. At Thirteenth and Walnut streets, Odd Fellows' hall, a colored lodge was in session. About eight colored men were slightly injured.

About eight colored men were slightly injured.

Next to the old Eclipse hall, at the corner, dwelt a peddler named McCreary, with his wife and child. He first knocked a hole in the side wall and dragged out his helpless wife and child over a seemingly impassable pile of debris. But his work did not end there. He thought of another woman and two helpless children who were imprisoned upstairs, and he rushed back into the ruins and dragged them out just in time. Two minutes after the last child was dragged out the fiames were licking at everything around that would burn.

On Chestant street, from Thirteenth to Say. On Chestnut street, from Thirteenth to Seventeenth, almost the entire neighborhood was wrecked. Devastation through the streets surrounding Baxter square was complete, and at the same time the most freakish. St. John's church was completely wrecked, trees in the parks were uprooted, foundations laid flat, and the very mud from the streets was raked up and dashed against the wrecked houses and Brand & Bethel's tobacco house on the south side of the square was not quite demolished but the building is almost ruined.

The freaky tornado struck the middle of the Louisville Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner, leaving the north and south ends intact. It looks as if an immense scoop had been taken out of the middle.

The Crescent tobacco warehouse on Main street is a total wreck, and the amount of to bacco lying open to the weather on that thoroughfare is almost beyond comprehension. Some of the wrecked houses contained 1,500 and 2,000 hogsheads.

and 2,000 hogsneads.
Chapel street, a little street extending from Market to Jefferson, is a confused mass of debris, blocking passage in the street altogether. There is not a building left standing on either side of the street.

On Main street, between Tenth and Eleventh, a street car was lifted bodily from the track and hurled with such force against the side of one of the brick walls as to demolish the car entirely and instantly kill the team stached to it.

Along Market, Main and Jefferson streets all the telegraph and telephone poles have been blown down and the wires strung across the streets like a tangled braid.

By far the greatest loss of life at any one place was Falls City hall, at Twelfth and Market.

It seems as if the angry elements had a special mission to wipe from the face of the earth Louisville's tobacco business, which is famed all over the world. Only three warehouses are left standing. Fourteen were flourishing yesterday. Henry Glover, of the Louisville Warehouse, said this merning that the business was stopped for the present. "We will not only lose our houses," he said. "but rauch of the stock, unless the rain holds back. The loss of the tobacco will not be great, if we have the time to move it. But the loss by suspension to business will be considerable. We are now engaged in moving hogsheads of tobacco. Of course we cannot get a cent of insurance. I could not approximate our loss."

The boundaries of districts swept by the hurricane, as nearly as may be described by streets, are as follows:

Coming from the southwest the wind began its destruction at Broadway, sweeping the roofs between Eighth and Sixteenth; thence northeasterly diagonally to Chestnut. On Chestnut the damage is between Sixteenth and Fourteenth; on Walnut, between Fourteeth and Twelfth; on Green, between Twelfth and Tenth; on Jefferson, between Eleventh and Rinth; on Market, between Eleventh and Righth; on Main, from Eleventh to Louisville hotel on the middle of the square between Sixth and Seventh. Between Sixth and Eleventh the hurricane swept to the river, and thence leaped to Jeffersonville.

Late in the afternoon the mayor placed the devastated district under martial rule. Shortly afterward the chief of police ordered the department under his charge to arrest any suspicious characters found upon the scene of disaster, and every person caught in the act of pillaging houses or robbing bodies. Members of the Louisville Legions on guard were placed under the chief's charge tonight, and they are protecting the streets in the wrecked vicinity in squads.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

In discussing the reports of the committees making house to house investigations, considerable diversity of opinion as to the loss was developed. The lowest estimate put it $1,000,000 and highest at $3,000,000, and the best founded facts presented placed it at $2,500,000. There is almost no insurance.

It was finally voted that the chairman of the committee should prepare a statement to be authorative for the use of the Associated Press. This was approved by the minority of the committee:

Press. This was approved by the minority of the committee:

To the People: The calamity that has overtaken the city by the cyclone of last night spread over the territory of the city, covering a space of 400 yards throughout the business and residence portion of the city. The loss of life is believed to be seventy-five people and the loss to the city in damage to house and grounds not to exceed $2,000,000.

While the calamity is a great one our people feel able to cope with it and are not cast down, but will proceed to repair and resume in channels now interrupted. In all other portions of the city business is resuming its channel.

Rumors Concerning Bowling Green.

Rumors Concerning Bowling Green. CINCINNATI, March 28.—4 a. m.—Late dispatches states that a tornado struck the dispatches states that a tornado struck the town of Bowling Green, Warren county, Kentucky, and completely wiped it out. As the wires are down, no detailed report can be obtained, and but the meagre fact that a calamity had occurred has been received. Bowling Green has population of about 5,000 inhabitants, and the loss of life is conjectured to be correspondingly large.

[A private telegram received from Bowling Green, last night, stated that very little damage was done there, and no loss of life.—Ed. Constitution.]

The Phenomena at Metropolis.

THE FUNNEL-SHAPED TERROR DIPS DOWN INTO THE RIVER. CHICAGO, March 28 .- A special from Metropolis, Ills., says: The cyclone of last night cut a clean swath about a quarter of a mile wide clear across the town, wrecking property of all descriptions and burying men, women and children in the debris of falling buildings. The number of victims cannot be ascertained with anything like accuracy, but it is reported that several hundred people were killed or wounded, and between two and three hundred houses were swept from their founda-tions and dashed to pieces above the heads of their unfortunate occupants.

The storm was past in a moment and then ame a blinding rain which greatly retarded the work of rescue. The people outside the path of the storm were quickly on the streets, and as fast as possible the victims were taken

The rain soon ceased and the full horror of the situation became apparent. On every side could be heard the groans, of dying and all around lay the mangled bodies of the dead. scores of bodies were removed from the ruins and wounded men were taken to the homes of those who had escaped the calamity and given every possible attention, but many have doubtless died through lack of proper medical attendance. In was terrible. Stores that had the business district the havoc been considered substantial were demolished instantly. The cyclone entered town from the south and west, sweeping everything before it. Small barns and outbuildings were caught by the wind and carried with crushing for against larger structures. Trees were twisted off short and hurled a long distance. Fences were leveled in the country for miles before the cyclone reached Metropolis, and for miles boyond. Every church and other prominent building in the place is either destroyed or badly damaged, including two schoolhouses, the courthouse and jail, and many smaller structures. THE TERROR AT METROPOLIS.

METROPOLIS, Ill., March 28.—This town was visited by the most fearful storm yesterday, that has ever occurred in its history, resulting in the wounding and death of a portion of her citizens, and such a wholesale destruction of property as was never known before. Suddenly there came from the southwest a rolling, dark cloud, apparently born of the union of two clouds. In a moment it swept down into the Ohio river, now at flood tide, and on lift-ing there followed it a column of water estimated all the way from fifty to two hundred feet in height. This curious phenomena swept onward striking the river front like the sledge-hammer of Hercules, demoishing buildings as if they had been cardboard. Solid structures fared no better than slighter sond structures fared no better than slighter ones. Stores, factories and dwellings went down together, even including the jail and tombstones in the grave yard were swept away. Only one person was killed outright, but very many were hurt, some undoubtedly fatally. In the surrounding country the devastation is even more appalling. A quarter of a million dollars is perhaps not an exaggerated estimate

A freight train was wrecked last night on the Louisville and Nashville railread, near Se-bree, Ky. The engineer and head brakeman were killed, and the fireman badly hurt.

The gale continues here. Considerable damage was done to the big wharf boat, and the tug, Ingleside, was sunk.

The Gale at Cairo.

CAIRO, Ill., March 28.—The gale here last night sank several shanties and fish boats on the Ohio riverand rendered navigation almost impossible. In the city it blew down one frame house from its foundation into the water. No one was hurt. The gale blew at the rate of sixty miles an hour.

At Mill Creek, five houses and several barns were blown down, and Mrs. Hartline and child badly hurt.

At Metropolis, the tornado unroofed and otherwise damaged about 200 houses, among them being the courthouse and bank and Judge Milkey's residence. One person was killed and several hurt.

THE STORM IN TENNESSEE.

Many People Killed by Both Storm and

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 28.—[Special.]—Reports from all over Tennessee show that terrible wind storms visited almost every section of the state, but the disasters are comparatively few. The exceptions were Gallatin, Fayetteville, Fosterville and Trezevant. In addition to other damage, a woman and child were killed by a falling house. At Fos-terville, ten houses were demolished, includ-ing two storchouses, the Cumberland Presbyterian church and depot. The storehouses caught on fire, and were burned with their contents. The depot was blown across the railroad track. The church, just completed, was moved fifty yards and turned bottom side np. Timbers and trees were found that had been moved a great distance. Eight persons were wounded, four seriously, and not expected to recover. At Fayetteville, forty or fifty houses were blown down, and many others badly wrecked. The Methodist, Christian and Baptist churches, all brick, were destroyed, two of them being new buildwere destroyed, two of them being new buildings, and two colored churches in addition.

The Morehead building, a three-story brick business house, was blown to the ground. Two men who were in it escaped. More than half the store houses in the town were unroofed, and many of them badly wrecked. Nearly the entire northwestern portion of the town was blown away. Mrs. Shafner was seriously injured, and a child of Mr. Bell was also badly injured.

THIS IS A STARTLER!

THE LOWER MISSISSIPPI VALLEY

FIRE ADDED TO THE STORM At Bellview, N. Y., McGehee Bros'. store house was burned down, and John McGehee and two negroes were burned to death. The storm struck the building at 3 o'clock, and McGehee was standing on the front veranda when the house tumbled over, and was set fire from the lamps. Nothing but the skull and ribs of the unfortunate men were found. McGehee's wife stood near by and saw her husband burn to death, but was powerless to save him.

save him. In Nashville the most serious cas the blowing in of the gable end of Mr. S. J. Henderson's house, where the inmates had a very narrow escape from death. Mrs. Henderson was preparing to retire when the roof came crashing through the ceiling of her room, and she was covered with the timbers and brick. She was severely though not seriously injured.

A freight wreck.

A freight wreck occurred near Sebree, Ky., on the Henderson division of the Louisville and Nashville railroad. Very little information could be obtained at the Louisville and Nashville railroad officas here concerning the affair, as reports from that division of the road are not made to this office, and as trains were delayed and the wires down on that division. The accident occurred to the south bound fast freight train, No. 57, which was due at Sebree at 8:30 o'clock last night. The accident was due to trees blowing down and falling across the track. Peter Burns, engineer; Charles Bridges, fireman, and the head brakeman, who is believed to have been William Powell, were killed. All of these live in Nashville, and all have families. lies.

AROUND GALLATIN. This section was visited by a terrific storm last night that left death and destruction in its track. Many houses were destroyed, though the storm was of short duration. Large trees were uprooted and great damage done. The brick residence of John Hibbett was completely blown away. The eighteen months old baby of John Hibbett and a boy twelve years old, son of Polo Langford, were killed. Hibbett and his wife are horribly mangled. William Patterson's residence was blown down, and a young son is dying. Jeff McKannie and four others were in Patterson's office, which was blown some two hundred yards with the men in it. McKannie was badly bruised about the head, and young Patterson is dying. A little boy, son of Hibbett, two years old, crawled from under the debris, and crawled over to a neighbor's house through the storm. The scene at Hibbett's was sickening. Patterson's house was unroofed, and Mr.
Patterson and three ladies were in one room when the roof fell in. Patterson received painful injuries, and his wife was also hurt. The bodies of John B. Hibbett, his little daughter Lucy, and Irene Sanford, daughter of P. A. Sanford, lie mangled corpses at the residence of Mrs. Dan Allen. A mile further on John Patterson, a son of William Patterson, is dead.

OTHER CASUALTIES. At Rogana, Postmaster James Wood is seriously hurt, and his child killed. THE STORM IN GEORGIA.

Severe Damage Done in Graysville. GRAYSVILLE, Ga., March 29.-[Specail.]-A severe wind storm, accompanied by rain, visited this place last night at 12 o'clock, doing considerable damage. The roof of the grist mill belonging to the Graysville Mining and Manufacturing company was blown off. The new distillery, which had only been in operation for a few weeks, was also badly damaged. The water tank was blown down, and the disconsiderably wrenched. The dwelling house occupied by Mr. John Carter was blown down, and completely destroyed. Mr. Carter and family were in the house at the time, but strange to say no one was hurt. Several outhouses were blown down, and one News from the country states that a few farmers had lost heavily by having their barns, out-houses and fences blown down. The storm houses and fences blown down. The storm only lasted for a few minutes, and was very severe, but as far as heard from, no one badly hurt. The Grayville Milling and Manufacturing company have already begun repairing the damage done their mill and distillery, and will have them in operation again in a few days.

The Places Filled.

Columbus, Ga., March 28.—[Special.]—
There was a strike by the street car drivers this morning. There are twelve or fourteen drivers in all, and they have been getting one dollar a day. They wanted their wages increased to $1.25 a day, and, without making any formal demand for the increase, they all went on a strike this morning, with the exception of Driver Wick Miller, who, on account of experience and his long connection with the company, was already getting $1.25. He was in charge of the Rose Hill car. He stuck to it faithfully, and made a trip or two up and down the hill, but at 7:30 o'clock Superintendent Henderson put him in charge of one of the Broad street cars. Mr. Henderson himself drove the depot car, and Deputy Sheriff McMichael soon commenced driving a Broad street car.

Sheriff McMichael soon commenced driving a Broad street car.
By 9 o'clock one or two new drivers had been engaged, and very regular schedules were being made. By noon the places of the strikers had all been filled, and the cars were running as usual. Mr. Henderson had already talked over the matter of salaries with President Flourny, and it was the intention of the company to increase salaries on the first of April.

Griffin, Ga., March 28.—[Special.]—General Manager Cecil Gabbett, of the Central railroad was in the city for a few hours today. While here he was seen by some of our prominent citizens, and asked to locate the new passenger depot on the ground now occupied by H. H. Jones & Co. as a marble yard. Mr. Gabbett seems willing to comform to the wishes of the people in the matter. Mr. J. D. Boyd approached him on the subject of a side track for the cotton company, and was assured that his road would lend this aid to the enterprise.

TO BE SUBMERGED.

NEW ORLEANS TO BE WASHED OUT.

Prediction That an Immense Wave Will Come the Mississippi Sweeping the Whole Lowlands.

NEW YORK, March 28.—Sergeant Dunn, of the signal service in an interview this after noon, says that one of the greatest calamities the country has ever known is imminent and that it is the duty of the press to warn the people of the lower Mississippi to prepare for the worst. He says: "The flood tide just entering the river from the Missouri river, at St. Charles, and at Cairo, from the upper waters of the Ohio, will be greatly augmented today by the increased rain-fall and high winds, and there is every probability that all districts bordering upon th lower Mississippi river will experience the greatest flood ever known.' THE GREATEST CALAMITY KNOWN.

"The river is now up to its highest water mark, and increasing floods from the tributaries now emptying into the Mississippi will make it imposible for those living in the low lands to escape, if they do not make haste. It will be the greatest calamity that has ever befallen that section of the country. The damage will be great below Memphis. The storm is just like an enormous picther of water poured upon a country already flooded. Albeen formed in the levees though Vicksburg, from 200 to 1,500 below feet wide, and twenty to twenty-five feet deep carrying off millions of gallons of water every second, the height of the river at Vicksburg and Cairo has remained almost stationary at the top flood limit. This shows that the channel of the river below is all choked up with alluvium and debris from the first flood, and that is acting as a dam, which will eventually work havoc with all the levees." NEW ORLEANS WILL BE DESTROYED. "When a wave crest from this new storm comes down the river things are bound to be carried away, and the entire surrounding country covered. This will probably arrive at Cairo in two or three days, but it may be three weeks before it reaches New Orleans. New Orleans will be visited, without doubt, by one of the most disastrous floods ever known, and I would not give five cents for my life in that city when the wave crest strikes it. I do not say this to frighten the people, but I am simply stating facts that will be verified. I have been stationed at Cairo, New Orleans and Cincinnati during the times of the great floods, and I know what they are. Some of the strongest levees on the river," he continued, "those at Helena, Ark., have been swept away completely in the last two days." WHAT GENERAL GREELEY SAYS.

SIGNAL OFFICE, WASHINGTON, March 28.—General A. W. Greeley, chief signal officer reiterates his opinion that the flood in the lower Mississippi valley will continue undiminished ten days or more. As early as March 12th, the chief signal officer expressed his opinion that the people of the lower Mississippi valley should prepare for the unprecedented flood conditions, and that all stock and movable property should be removed above the highest flood point ever experienced. General Greeley sent to the house of representatives a week since his official opinion that the flood conditions would be aggravated rather than diminished within the next two weeks and that a loss of life might be expected unless prompt measures of warning on the part of the local authorities was taken in the expressed districts. The opinions of the the part of the local authorities was taken in the exposed districts. The opinions of the chief signal officer have already been verified as the flood conditions have been aggravated, and some loss of life already occurred. The rainfall of Thursday must raise the Mississippi slightly from Carlo, southward, unless the crevasses increase in number. There is no new or important change in the situation since yesterday, and the signal office gave full details to the press then and will continue to do so as the occasion demands.

Skipwith, Miss., Ruined by the Floods— Two More Crevasses. New Orleans, March 28.—A Picayune's Vicksburg special says: The news received today that crevasses have occurred at Huntington and Easton, Miss., created consternation in this city, and settles the fate of all but the highest portions of the Yazoo

The crevasse at Huntington, nearly opposite Arkansas City, and forty miles above Greenville, was 300 feet wide at last accounts and at Easton, four miles above, is 100 feet wide. Communication between this city and Memphis by rail is seriously threatened. The crevase at Easton cuts the MississippiValley Roads Riverside division in two between Scott and Lamont today. Opputs and Skipwith crevasse are pouring floods of water in the Yazoo delta. At Skipwith the break is now six hundred feet wide and fifteen to twenty feet deep, and the water is shooting through with a velocity resembling the famous whirl-pool rapids. The town is now covered with water to the depth of ten feet or more. There is nothing to be seen of some of the houses except the peak of their roofs, while others have turned over and are being tossed about by the surging waters.

The loss of stock resulting from the inundation will be large, but it is believed there will be but little loss of human life. The outlook is gloomy, indeed, and the people in Louisiana and Mississippi are removing their stock to places of safety.

A Row Over a Flag Raising in a Mining District.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 28.—The senior order of American Mechanics have called for one thousand armed men to assist tomorrow in placing the American flag on their public schoolhouse at Mucklerat, a small mining town in Herrett township, in this county. The mechanics attempted to raise the flag last Saturday, but were met at the entrance to the school yard by a mob of foreigners who refused to allow the flag to be placed on the building. Insulting expressions were made use of and finally excitement became so great that the school board finally urged the committee to withdraw, fearing a resort to violence. The mechanics returned and after reporting the matter to their council, a circular was issued, calling for 1,000 armed men to see that a flag was placed on the building tomorrow and feeling is high and there may be trouble.

A Negro Kills a White Man in South

CHARLOTTE, N. C., March 28,—[Special.]—
News of a remarkable case is received here from Tradesville, a small village just across the state line, and about forty miles from Charlotte. Tuesday night, Roach Catoe, a negro, with an accomplice, foully murdered Gus Hennis, white. Catoe went to the house of Hennis and asked him to come out and show him the way home. They did not get far from the house before the negro astacked

It seems that she had, previous to the time of the zourder, been living on intimate terms with Catoe, and had made a proposition that she would work a year for any one that would kill her husband. She and the negro Catoe were today placed in jail. The accomplices of Catoe are unknown.

ARCHER'S DEFALCATION.

The Amount Going Into the Hundreds

Annapolis, Md., March 28.—The joint committee of the legislature appointed to investigate the defalcations of Stevenson Archer, treasurer of the state, made a report tonight of the result of the investigation in Baltimore. They enumerated five classes of bonds, of which there should be in the treasurer's hands a total of $500,000. They found $345,000, showing a deficit of $127,000. This amount is exclusive of coupons on some of these bonds not accounted for, amounting, perhaps, to several thousand dollars more. A subsequent investigation may show some change in the investigation may show some change in the figures above given, but that there exists a heavy defalcation, there is no room for doubt.

RALEIGH, N. C., March 28.—James P. Davis, alias William T. Shackleford, was hanged to-day at Pittsboro, for the murder of John Hor-ton, near that place, several months ago. Dauis's life has been a remarkable one, and he confessed a few days ago that his real name was Shackleford, and that he formerly lived in South Carolina, where he was guilty of murdering his own children several years ago. A Strike at Wilklkesbarre. A Strike at Wilkikesbarre.

WILESCARE, Pa., March 28.—As had been expected a general strike of workmen employed at Sheldon Axel works here, was inaugurated this morning. At 10 o'clock five hundred men or more laid down their tools and marched quietly out. Out of the whole number of men employed, but fifty remained at work. A force of policemen were present but their services were not required. There are no indications of concession on either side. It looks now as though the fight would be a bitter one. The men go out because of the refusal of the superintendent to reinstate three men who had been laid off some time ago.

Another delegation, from Pensacola, headed by W. D. Chipley, sought to have the old navy yard there reopened and made a first-class yard. There was also a delegation from Port Royal, S. C., with D. GREAT PREVAILING

The Wind Blew Hard, and the Atmosphere
Was Affected, But No Material Damage Was Done.

The tail end of the cyclone which struck Atlanta early yesterday morning, played the very mischief with the signal service appar-atus exposed on top of the Gould building.

So much of the apparatus as was de-able was entirely destroyed. Glass tubes were masked to atoms, and mercury ran in little rivulets over the graveled roof of the building in which the signal service station is located.

There used to be a little chicken coop like cupola on top of the customhouse, before the signal office was removed from there to make way for the alteration in the building. Since then this familiar object has been in temporary then this familiar object has been in temporary quarters on the high roof of the Gould build-ing, where it was lost to view in the midst of four high brick extension walls.

This little coop housed the exposed weather apparatus. It was a slight protection to such of the apparatus as is necessary to be kept in the open air, with no other roof above it than the blue sky—or whatever kind of sky there happened to be.

Yesterday morning it was a dark, fierce sky, darker and fiercer than the little cupola has ever withstood before, and so very much more tempestuous, that when the howling winds and pelting rain swooped down upon it, the frail protector of weather gauges shivered and fell. Along with it went thermograph and nichy.

Early in the morning, when Observer Fitzgerald went to make out his reports, for helhad

He found nothing in the proper position or condition except the wind gauge and one or wo other heavy instruments. Observer Fitzgerald gathered up the fragments of the broken apparatus and carried them down to his office on the floor below. Nothing could be used again, and he at once telegraphed to headquarters at Washington for another set of instruments.

Help for Louisville.

It is impossible to estimate the amount of suffering caused by the Louisville calamity. Thousands of good people in that city are in argent need of help.

Doubtless many of our citizens who are bound to the victims of the storm by ties of blood and friendship will feel anxious to belp them in their extremity.

In the absence of any organized local movement in the matter, THE CONSTITU-TION will take pleasure in acknowledging to Louisville anything that may be contributed by our readers for the relief of the beautiful and generous southern city which has, more than once, stood by Georgia in her hour of need.

The Two Grady Memorial Volumes. There are two Grady memorial volumes now offered the public.

One is the authorized volume, published by an arrangement of the administrators of Mr. Grady's estate, for the benefit of his wife and children.

The other is a spurious work, necessasily not as complete as the authorized book, and written by some one who is ashamed to give his name, and yet who is advertised extensively by the publishers of the spurious voltime as being "an intimate friend of Mr. Grady."

The publishers of the latter work respond to what THE CONSTITUTION has said about the littleness of their effort to deprive Mr. Grady's family of the income which they ought to receive from the sale of the book on his life, by trying to make it appear that an injustice has been done them in allowing the publication of the book to go outside of Georgia. They claim that they were willing to publish it under as favorable conditions as any other house could offer to, and that an outside firm was favored over them.

In the first place, it must be understood that THE CONSTITUTION had nothing whatever to do with making the contract by which Messrs. Cassell & Co. became the publishers of the authorized volume; though, If we had, we should have done just as the administrators of Mr. Grady's estate did in awarding the contract to Messrs. Cassell & Co. Mr. W. A. Hemphill and Mr. S. M. Inman, Mr. Grady's administrators, conferred with the representatives of publishing houses from all parts of the country, the publishers of the spurious volume among them. They carefully considered every offer made, and decided that that of Messrs. Cassell & Co. was decidedly the most favorable, their contract allowing Mr. Grady's family one-half of the proceeds derived from the sale of the book-they to stand all expenses. Another reason that prompted Messrs, Hemphill and Inman to accept the Cassell's offer was that Mr. Grady, himself, had arranged with that house to publish his history of the south, which he was just ready to begin when taken with his last illness. He had been corresponding with them for months, and had made full arrangements for them to handle his history.

As to the "home industry" argument, the "fake" book was printed and bound in toto in Philadelphia, while the other is published in New York, by a firm which has its south ern headquarters in Atlanta, and employs more men in Georgia-two to one-than the house whose methods do not reflect credit on Atlanta, if it has its headquarters here.

THE CONSTITUTION is glad to see that its efforts have paralyzed the outlook for the spurious volume. We are receiving every week hundreds of circulars returned to us with indignant letters by those to whom they were sent soliciting agencies.

In conclusion, the authorized volume will be ready for delivery in one week. It contains about 700 pages, while the other contains only about half that number, the pages of the latter being also very much smaller. The authorized volume contains twice as much matter, written by Mr. Grady's colleagues on THE CONSTITUTION, and edited by Joel Chandler Harris, with an introduction by Henry Watterson, of the Courier-

The public can take which it chooses.

A Wonderful Showing. The industrial progress of the south in the past three years, as mirrored in the Manufacturers' Record, shows a marked increase n every branch of industry, and the year 1890, which is yet so young, leads all the others in the number of established and projected enterprises. The word "boom," its general acceptance, can hardly be applied to the activity, enterprise and wonderful development of the south in this short space of time. Booms there have been, and they are well enough in their way and do much toward advertising the advantages of the sections; but it has been more of a steady growth, a gradual but sure progression, the faith of the man in the land, and the courage of his convictions in the development of its resources. Time was when people were content to fold their hands and wait for others to do this work. They feared to risk a dollar of their own money, to invest in anything which did not promise immediate returns; they kept their talents buried when they might have had them out at interest, and calmly waited for the northern capitalist to start the ball rolling; to build their furnaces, to dig their mines and start their cotton factories. But they finally discovered that they had to make a beginning themselves; they had to show the world that they had faith in their country and were willing to give their all to its upbuilding; and when they did this capital came to their relief and locked hands with them in the great work.

When a man who owns an acre of good land in the south jerks his coat and goes to digging, in the belief that there is a gold mine in it, he is bound to attract attention. The crawd will gather around him, and presently, there will be more spades and pick axes glittering in the sunlight than you can number. He will have all the help he wants to work it for all it is worth.

It is this same confidence; this faith and independence of our people; this blazing the way themselves, which has made the south great and attracted to us the wealth of the world, which is now being utilized in bringing our hidden resources to light. The people are moving on the right line now. Let them keep it up.

A Political Scheme.

Some one has humorously said that the Puritans came to this country to maintain their own rights and prevent everybody else from doing the same.

This appears to be the policy of some of their descendants. At a labor meeting in Boston, the other night, one of the speakers said that the colored workingmen on the plantations in the southern states would soon organize as their white brethren in the north had done. He predicted that a surprising condition of things among the colored people would be the result, and favored the policy of sending missionaries south to organize colored labor societies.

We begin to suspect that a crowd of peo ple, in what Editor Dana calls "the Old Crank State," have no business of their own to look after, as they seem to be giving their entire time to the management of other people's affairs.

The south needs no outside missionaries, teachers, reformers, business managers and cranks. She is prepared to welcome good people who come here to grow up with the country and become identified with us. But we want no self-appointed guardians and dictators, and no new problems. We believe in the American idea of home-rule and local government, and are not yet ready to accept the leadership of either the Bellamyites or the Bedlomites.

Death and Desolation

From the snow-clad hills of the northwest o the flower-crowned shores of the Mexican gulf, the twin monsters of storm and flood have done their worst. Their wild work has wrecked a territory equal in extent to an empire, and a broad track of death and desolation stretches its course through a dozen populous and prosperous commonwealths.

This calamity, so awful and disastrous in ts nature and extent, is a national scourge, smiting our whole people, and carrying grief and despair into thousands of homes north and south.

The storm in the north and the flood in the south swept everything before them. Never were the winds in a wilder mood; never were the mighty waters in a madder, deadlier flurry. Great cities disemboweled, smiling towns wiped from the face of the earth, thousands of people killed and maimed and left homeless -- so much for the work of the winds in the north. Villages and towns and plantation swallowed up by the flood-a land of sunshine and flowers turned into a raging inland sea-families drowning by hundreds, and floating to the gulf helpless and hopeless in the darkness of night-so much for the work of the waters in the south.

There is mourning today at many a fireside, and the land is filled with lamentations. No similar visitation in this country has ever been so destructive and far-reaching. It is so vast and appalling that it will be days and weeks before we can fully see its magnitude. and it will be years before the cruel scars are effaced by Time's gentle hand.

But storms and floods cannot last. They pass away and are forgotten. New blessings will brighten the world, and the Almighty will not forget the suffering and sorrowing.

Republican Race Prejudices. According to Murat Halstead, people who object to electing or appointing negroes to office have "defective education."

Mr. Halstead's sweeping charge places the white republicans of the north in a very bad light, for they are determined that the negroes shall hold office nowhere except in the south.

A recent election in Bridgeton, New Jersey, is a case in point. Two negroes, whose party services had made them prominent, were nominated in a strong republican ward, on the republican ticket for justice and constable. Rather than vote for them, many republicans voted for the democratic nominees. The democratic candidate for justice received 268 votes, the republican candidate's 185. The democratic candidate for constable received 364 votes to the republican candidate's 232.

Now, this occurred in a ward which was largely republican. There is only one explanation. The republican voters who were strongly in favor of negro rule down south would not trust negroes even with two little insignificant offices in their own community. If the republicans of the north will not stick to their principles at home, with what show of fairness can they ask outside communities to put the bottom rail on top?

The Last of the Bismarcks. There will never be another Bismarck in Germany like the man who won the title of the Iron Chancellor and who now, in his old age, crowned with the love and the laurels of the people, has withdrawn from the scenes his name and services made famous to await the close of a life serene and splendid in peaceful retirement from its active duties. At least, no such man will rise and assert himself during the reign of the present em peror. There may be such a man among the people-some village Hampden that might withstand the shocks of tyranny "with dauntless breast" and do battle for the people; some man of the millions who can guide the ship of state as Bismarck did and make his power felt throughout the empire; but none will have the opportunity. Bismarck's successor, instead of being selfassertive and stamping his individuality upon the government, taking obdurate and successful issue with his sovereigns in questions of state importance and otherwise rising to the heights of his position, will more likely be a tool in the hands of the emperor; a man in the background, whose voice will be a whisper in the imperial councils. William himself has said it, and his record shows that he will be absolute, supreme, and wii! brook no opposition to his policy, whatever that may be.

taken this turn. The German people will now have an opportunity to more fully test this young man and to weigh him at his true worth. It may be that they have seen enough already to give them a pretty fair estimate of his abilities and the lines he will follow in his government. But there are surprises still in store for them. Time and the hour will tell.

Northern Lynchers.

Near Hartford, New York, the other night, a band of masked men went to the house of a wealthy farmer, and committed a gross outrage.

These lynchers, or "White Caps," as they call themselves, had no personal grievance against the farmer. They had been informed that he sometimes abused his wife, and that was enough for them. They never thought of securing evidence and having the man punished in the courts. They broke into his house, dragged him from his bed, gave him a whipping, and after tarring and feathering him, left him more dead than

When such outrages occur in New York, one of the oldest states in the union, the apostles of northern civilization should give the matter their attention.

Railroads and Sectionalism.

A Louisiana contemporary takes the posi tion that sectionalism in the past was largely the result of the policy of building lines of railway from the east to the west. Thus the east and west became closely united in interests and ideas, while the south remained practically cut off from the rest of the

The remedy for this unfortunate state of affairs, the Louisiana paper thinks, is already being applied. We are changing the direction of the great lines of transportation. They are now running from the north to the south, paralleling the great rivers and the mountain ranges, and transporting the products of the south to the north, and bringing in exchange northern goods. This policy in the course of time is bound to wipe out Mason and Dixon's line and put an end to sectionalism in politics and legislation.

There is something in this view, but sec tionalism dies hard, and we have not heard MONTPELIER, VT., is excited over the trial of J. S. Caswell for the murder of George J. Gould. Caswell shot Gould because he had married the merderer's sweetheart. Mrs. Gould testified in the case, and said that she had lived with Caswell for years as a wife, without being married to him. She justifies the murderer, and says that she would marry him in a minute if he was free. DR. LYMAN ABBOTT thus addresses Robert G. You do not know that there is no God, but you do not know that there is one. Well, let us for the moment grant that we are all agnostics; that we none of us know that there is a God; that we only have faith that there is one. Is it so impossible a faith that loyalty to truth requires its overthrow? I believe, indeed, that our faith in God rests on the surest of all foundations—on a personal acquaintance and fellow-ship with him. Herbert Spencer can hardly be accused of being subject to the delusions and superstitions of an ignorant and priest-ridden intellect. It is Herbert Spencer who says: 'Unlike the ordinary consciousness, the religious consphere of sense. But the devel-oping man has thoughts about existences which he regardes as usually intangible, inaudible, invisible; and yet which he regards as operative upon him.' It is this consciousness of a God who lies beyond the sphere of sense, that our faith in God is founded—a faith which in one form or another has characterized the greatest, the profoundest, the most luminous thinkers of all ages; the greatest philosophers like Socrates, the greatest poets like Goethe, the greatest statesmen like Gladstone, the greatest entists like Isaac Newton. SOME PEOPLE YOU MEET.

Mr. Steve Postell, who knows more about racers and racing than almost anybody in Atlanta, has a project which he thinks would greatly help racing in this vicinity.

"Briefly stated," he said, "it is this: To recenize a cleanity has in Control of the control of organize a circuit here in Georgia which will warrant owners of horses bringing them to Georgia. The Piedmont Exposition company up good purses and gets good horses but I know that a great many stables would come from the north if they were assured of series of meetings. The project is entirely leasible. Take Savannah, Augusta, Macon and Columbus in Georgia. Macon, Augusta and and Columbus will have expositions this year, and there will be racing at each. Atlan with those three cities and Savannah—which is always ready for good racing—should form a regular circuit organization. I believe it could be done, and done easily. There is already a movement on foot in Savannah for the reorganization of the old Jockey club there, and in my opinion the fair and exposition organi go into a racing circuit. It would be clearly to the interests of them all, for it would be the means of bringing more horses, better horses, and crowds." THE CONSTITUTION is receiving every day letters inquiring into the baseball possibilities.

"Is Atlanta to have a club?" and "Will there be a Georgia league?" are the questions most frequently asked. These questions are much asier asked than answered. One thing is certain, however-if Atlanta is to have a club there will be an entirely new deal. The mer who have taken a hand in baseball manage ment in the past are positive their statements that they will assume the responsibilities again-no, not even for the great honor which goes with the responsibilities. There may be others to take their places. There is a chance to make a club pay here. A state league, well organized and with enough money to start it right, can seem to be taking hold of the state league scheme in earnest, and both have effected an organization. If there is anybody in Atlanta who wants to run a baseball club, now is the time for him to come to the front.

Colonel Tinsley N. Rucker, who is "Tiny" to thousands of his friends through Georgia, spent yesterday in the city. He came on legal business, but was kept busy during part of the afternoon answering the salutations of Atlanta friends. He is popular, too, and nobody need be surprised to see him come out ahead in this

Farmers in New England. Governor Ames of Massachusetts:

"What do I think about the decadence of New England farms?" he chuckled, "why my dear sir, there is no such thing. New England farms are just as good as they ever were, only the farmers wish to live better than their fathers did, and are not content to put up with privations, necessitated by existence in the woods or away back in the hills far from a village, The trouble is that the standard of living has become so much higher, not that the farms are failing in value.
Why, I can remember, when a boy, say fifty years ago, that my father and mother used to make their own tallow candles, and if we used more than three dips in an evening it was considered an extravagance. Then we used to save every thread from frajed garments, and they were afterward weaved into rugs. Otherwise, our floors were bare, and the commonest kerosene lamp of today pare, and the commonest kerosene lamp of today was held as high then as our finest Argand burner.

PAT. WALSH HITS BACK.

His Reply to the Attack of Colonel Livingston in Albany.

In his address at the Albany Chautauqua, Colonel Livingston bitterly attacked Hon. Pat Walsh, of the Augusta Chronicle. Our Albany correspondent wired the details of Colonel ivingston's speech. In yesterday's issue of the Chronicle, Colonel Walsh hits back in the following leading

AN UNPROVOKED AND COWARDLY ATTACK. AN UNPROVOKED AND COWARDLY ATTACK.

It is one of the crosses incident to journalism to have one's opinion misconstrued and basely misrepresented. There is no paper in Georgia that has stood up more firmly for the alliance in its fight against the bagging trust than the Chronicle, and there is no one that more earnestly desires the prosperity of the farmer than its editor. Every man of intelligence knows that there can be no tangible or lasting prosperity in an agricultural country like the south unless the farmers, the men who litterally dig the crops out of the ground as the miner picks the coal and iron out of the mountain, are not self-supporting, but realizing picks the coal and from out of the mountain, are not self-supporting, but realizing profits from their labors.

The south's agricultural success is a necessary condition precedent to general prosperity. Believing that the developement and improvement of the south can be best promoted by the introduction of deversified industries we have steadfastly, to our own personal and pecuniary injury, advocated a certain line of policy which we are satisfied is promotive of the ends in view.

We believe that a fair, mederate tariff is best for the farmers and the people of the south.

No amount of opposition or personal abuse has swerved the Chronicle from this course. Its editor is not and does not expect to be a candidate

No amount of opposition this course. No amount of opposition the course werved the Chronicle from this course. No amount of the course what the Chroniele for any office, and therefore what the Chroniele says is entitled to respectful consideration from a people whose only motive it is to serve and beneficially a for the Chroniele people whose only motive it is to serve and benefit.

It would have been profitable for the Chroniclefor several years to run with the current of popular opinion and be on the strong side, but to do this would have necessitated a surrender of convictions and an abandonment of an industrial line of policy that we believe to be more essential and more vital to the south than any other sectior of the union.

There is nothing nearer to the hopes and heart of the editor of the Chronicle than the prosperity of the farmer, but we cannot surrender our convictions and follow blindly the lead of men in whom we have no confidence, and for whom we whom we have no confidence, and for whom we have little respect.

An editor to be useful must be independent, and he should be so honest as neither to be flattered, or bullied, or bought by the hope of office or gain. He must stand for the right regardless of consequences. He may discharge his duty by running with public opinion and voicing the popular sentiment, but he has not the proper conception of the duties of his position, if he fails on great occasions and on great questions of national import to give expression to the mature convictions of his own mind. The highest duty of an editor is to lead and not to follow in the wake of public opinion like a trimmer of a coward. like a trimmer or a coward.

The Chronicle and its editor have been villified.

The Chronicle and its editor have been villified by small newspapers and contemptible politicians in order to make favor with the masses, but no amount of misrepresentation, no amount of personal calumny can either intimidate or deter us from telling the people the truth as we perceive it. The Chronicle has firmly, but respectfully, criticized the scheme to inflate the volume of currency by establishing bonded warehouses throughout the country for the storing of imperishable agricultural products, upon which the government is to advance eighty per cent in every county throughout the United States in which there are $500,000 worth of farm products raised.

The agricultural products of the United States last year amounted to about $4,000,000,000. The products of the mine, the shop and factory

The agricultural products of the United States last year amounted to about $4,000,000.000. The products of the mine, the shop and factors amounted to over $7,000,000,000.

Now if the government advances 80 per centupon the cotton, corn, wheat, rye, barley, oats and the various other products of the field, why should it not advance the same amount upon the coal and iron and the different products of the shop, the mine and the factory.

If the government goes into this wild scheme, what is to become of the currency and the business of the country?

The Chronicle characterized this scheme as "socialism." Edward Bellamy, in his work entitled "Looking Backward," places the government in the position when in the year 2000 it shall doeverything for the citizen. The government's to take charge of the land and the forests, the mines and the factories, the steamships, the telegraphs and the railroads; in fact, of every interest and pursuit.

There have been various schools of socialism in

There have been various schools of socialism in-the last hundred years, of which Fourier and Saint-Simon, of France, Robert Owen, of England, and Karl Marck, of Prussia, have been disciples. There are and have been various schools and de-grees of socialism. Some are good and some are victous. The socialism of Karl Marck may be good for Germany, where the king and not the-people rule.

good for Germany, where the king and not the people rule.

Socialism, in any form, is not good for the United States. When the government takes the products of the farm, the forest, the mine, the shop and the factory and advances money to the producer that is practically socialism.

The difference between ours and monarchical governments is that in the one case the government is supposed to do everything for the government and themselves. It is the difference between the government of the people and the government of kings.

We are thus particular in explaining the views in opposition to the plan of the alliance, which we concider chimerical, and which we have character: ized as socialism.

For the expression of our views we have been fixed as socialism.

For the expression of our views we have been denounced by Colonel L. F. Livingston, president of the Georgia alliance. No self-respecting manin Georgia would use the language employed by him in reference to the Chronicle or its editor. No honorable man in Georgia will believe what Mr. Livingston has charged.

Mr. Livingston has not the intelligence to perceive that there can be no question of veracity

Mr. Livingston has not the intelligence to perceive that there can be no question of veracity where the issue is not a matter of fact. Even in a despotism men may have the right to discuss a theory or such an abstract question as that advocated by the alliance. A man may be mistaken inhis theory, but no one but an ignoramus will impute malice to him for his opinion.

We might characterize him as a scurvy politician and an unprincipled, dirty, political trickster; but we are admonished by the proverb not to answer a fool according to his folly.

The animus of Mr. Livingston's denunciation will be found in the fact that the Chronicle has favored another candidate than himself for governor.

We leave Mr. Livingston to the merited con-tempt of every honest man in Georgia for his un-provoked, ignorant and cowardly attack upon the editor of the Chronicle.

POLITICAL POINTS.

-Dublin Post: Politics in Laurens this year promises to be extremely warm. There is one pronounced candidate in the field seeking legislative honors, while two others are the pulse of the people. -- The mass meeting of Houston democrats to Every district in the tle singular, but, although the election for county officers is only about nine months off, no candidates have announced themselves. It may, howdates have announced themselves. It may, how-ever, be the calm that always precedes a storm. We have as many good men for office as any county in Georgia, and the people will have an opporture ity to chose from the best.

—Swainsboro Pine Forest: We have been feeling around, somewhat, politically, and find things getting along pretty lively. There is no doubt but that Dr. Lane will run for the senate-from Emanuel, and Mr. W. R. Kemp for the house.

All this he said in his speech, and he said it in a way that showed he meant every word of it."

He Was a Georgian.—The Rev. S. Barnwell, who was killed, with his two children, in the horrible Louisville disaster, was a Georgian, and there are hundreds of people in Atlanta who knew and loved him well. Mr. Barnwell was born and brought up in Rome, Ga. For many years he was the Episcopal minister at Marietta, and when he left there to take the care of the Louisville church. left there to take the care of the Louisville church his departure caused the deepest sorrow. Mr. Barnwell has four brothers, all of whom are Epis-sopal ministers in Georgia.

Everybody Should Study Law .- "I would advise every business man, before going into business on his own account, to study law and be admitted to the bar."

The speaker was a prominent Whitehall street "A general and accurate knowledge of law," he continued, "is of service in every line of business.

What a merchant needs is not exhaustive knowl-odge to fit him for actual practice, but knowledge enough to keep himself and his business out of "Now, I think that the law should be part of the regular course in the Boy's High school. Lectures should be delivered by competent judges and lawyers, and text books adopted as in the study of Latin, or Greek, or mathematics. Every one of those boys will need that training." A Disgraceful Scene.-A lady on one of the dummy cars was frightened into convulsions yesterday afternoon by a street scene which oc-curred at the corner of Alabama and Pryor Streets. The actors in the scene were two policemen and a fighting, struggling negro woman. The woman was not very big, but it took the combined strength of the two men to hold her. They had her arms bent back until they looked as if they would break, but still she fought every step of the way. The two men succeeded in holding her arms and forcing her on, but they could not make her hold her tongue and she used it with telling effect. The woman was fighting mad abusive, and probably drunk, but everybody who saw the blow struck was disgusted. Some of the gentlemen whose offices are in the neighborhood complain that such scenes frequently occur, and they ask what is the use of the patrol wagon but to save the public from such sights, and, if the wagon is not suitable for such work, they want to know why a regular patrol wagon is not obtained for the police department. About a State Library-"Georgia," remarked a gentleman yesterday at the Kimball, "has-nothing worthy the name of a state library. The num-ing worthy the name of a state library. The number of books is small, the selection poor, and it is in no sense a state library.

"My idea of what it should be is this: That it should be patterned after the national library in Washington, where there are copies kept of every book printed in the United States. People come from all countries and study for months and even years in the library there. It is an epitome of American research. A physicist studies for weeks, acquainting himself with American theories and research about American literature.

"Now, a state library would necessarily be much smaller. But make it at least a complete collection of books sold in Georgia. Some such provision could be made without infringing the national copyright regulations. Then in fifty years from now you would have under one roof a copy of every book that had been sold in Georgia for the past half century. There would be a collection of medical works by Georgia authors, a similar collection of legal works, of fiction, historical work, etc.

"Almost any general law would include books by foreign authors, but the main value of such a collection depends on especial prominence being given the work of Georgia authors.

Then it would be indeed a state library. Its value would increase with time. As it is now, Atlanta books are forgotten in Atlanta, and there is not in existence a copy of many books written and published here before the war. Really valuable work is lost, and cannot be replaced.

and cannot be replaced.
"The value of a library that preserves all these books cannot be over-estimated. That is my idea of a state library"

A Revival of Enthusiasm .- For some time past there has been a dearth of interest in the Uni-form Rank K. of P. Calantha Division No. 2, has always been the leading division in the south, but owing to the fact that some of the members but owing to the fact that some of the members moved away, interest began to wave and only for the attendance of a faithful few, who kept the order together it would have disbanded long ago. On Thursday night a goodly number of the old members were out to the meeting for the election officers. New men were put in office, and pledged themselves to faithful attendance and unstinted support of the officers. The officers elected for he ensuing term are:

Sir knight captain, E. W. Blue.
Sir knight first lieutenant, B. D. Patti.
Sir knight first lieutenant, B. D. Patti.
Sir knight herald, George W. Sheliyerton.
Sir knight guard, Frank T. Ridge.
Sir knight sentinel, A. W. Dozier. Sir knight treasurer, Thomas Commode. Sir knight recorder, J. C. Carlisle. Sir knight color bearer, R. J. Griffin. Sir knight quartermaster, J. J. Francis.

Installing officer retiring captain, Sir Knight worker in all orders to which he belongs, and if members of the division accord him the hearty support they have pledged him, it is safe to pre-dict that under his command the company will take the brightest place of any organization of the kind in the south.

THE MINSTRELS LAST NIGHT.

A better minstrel performance than that given by Primrose and West last night— Well, it "can never occur in this town," that's certain.

Nor can a more enthusiastic reception be given any company. It was "standing room only" from the opening of the doors, and up in the top gallery the gods were hanging on by their eyebrows.

An estimate of the show is very easy to make From the earliest days of minstrelsy in the south—the days of Campbell and Kunkel, Luke West, of blessed memory, and Joe Sweeney—from those days to this there never has been a minstrel company that could equal that which appeared at DeGive's last night.

That is the highest encomium, but it is deserved. The statement is made in the face of still vivid recollection of the San Franciscos of Haverly's, of Carneross, of the Barlow, Wilson, Primrose and West company, and the companies which grew out of that, and of all the companies of the present day. Of them all this is the best.

From the time Master Willie Martin, the little drum major, makes his appearance until the curtain drops upon the Big Four's finale, there is not a dull moment. And it is not only good, it is all of the best.

The stage setting and costumes for the first part are most magnificent. The stage is hung in heavy drapery of white satin, with the orchestra on a raised platform in the rear. Mr. Le Mack and Mr. Powers are on the ends at first, then come Mr. Primrose, Mr. West and Mr. Dockstader.

The musical features are exceptionally strong. The solos by Mr. Davis, Mr. Natus, the sextette, Mr. Samuels and Mr. Moore are of the highest order of artistic excellence. Mr. LeMack sings a topical song, entitled, "Good Advice," which was funny and caught on. Mr. Powers did some inimitably good banjo playing. Then came Primrose and Dockstader, with West in the middle.

Primrose is an old favorite; Dockstader's first visit made him a new one. Dockstader made a hit right at the start with his song, "It could never occur in this town," a topical song, full of the best local allusions. These were outside of the beaten path, and were very cleverly handled. Dockstader's jokes were good, and in his specialty he dem-onstrated that he is clearly the leader in this line. It was awfully funny. George Primrose's English swell is the funniest thing of its kind ever put on the stage, and his jumping jack imitation is funnier. His dancing is unique and characteristic of one of the cleverest ministrels who ever appeared before the public.

Billy West gave something decidedly new and most laughable in his "cremation," taking George Powers and W. H. Smith as his vic-

The rest of the programme is made up of excellent features. Barber, the bicyclist, is the best we have ever had the pleasure of seeing. He is a wonder and no mistake. Handsome Barney Fagan has two good features in the "Parade of the Popinjays" and "Language of the Flowers." The Weston Brothers are the best of the musical-mokrs, and the Big Four have a very funny sketch as a finale, "The Haunted Mill."

In every feature it is excellent. At 11:45 today the company will give another parade. Matinee this afternoon and night performance.

Lew Dockstader, the famous minstrel, doesn't take any stock in this oft-heard complaint that "the minstrelsy of today is not nigger minstrelsy," which you often hear.

"I don't believe there will ever be any re turn to the genuine old-time negro min-strelsy," he said. "There is no demand for it. The people get exactly what they want in the elegant and the variety of companies like this Prim-rose and West company, if it wasn't what the people want the managers wouldn't give it to them. No, as the old plantation negro has died out, so has old-time minstrelsy. The first blow that it got was from comic opera which furnished the light, catchylsongs of which min-strelsy had a big monopoly before that. Then the sentiment about the negro died out. There was a sentiment about the old plantation ne gro with his banjo picking and his quaint melodies, but that is no more. Everybody knows that the negro is free to hustle for him-self and if he don't succeed it's his fault. "No," he added, "there will be no return to the olden days. The order of minstrelsy we now get will go for a few years longer, and then-but nobody can tell what will come Dockstader tried to make a theater devoted rescularior tried to make a treaser devoted exclusively to minstrelsy pay in New York. The first year he cleared $40,000, but before the end of Dockstader's theater course, he was $20,000 "in the hole." He doesn't mourn bein losses but easy "(21) got these years." over his losses, but says, "I'll get there yet," and he will.

A Reception Given by Mrs. Captain Jacobs Yesterday Afternoon—The Mallon So-ciety of the Girl's High School.

The reception given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Captain Jacobs in honor of her guest, Mrs. Jacobs, of Danville, Ky., was one of the most elegant affairs given in Atlanta this season.

The pretty square hall of Mrs. Jacobs's home was banked with palms and ferns, while one room filled with tete-a-tete tables in appointments of daintest linen and china, was decorated in bride and Marechal Neil roses, making a symphony in white and gold. In an adjoining room the decorations were of violets and La France roses, and here the rare old china was of the two shades, an exquisite and unusual combination. The many guests were reunusual combination. The many guests were re-ceived by Mrs. Jacobs and Mrs. Chute, assisted by Mrs. Jacobs, Mrs. Clossen, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Hap-persett, Mrs. Field, Miss Rawles, Mrs. Mims and Mrs. Burton Smith.

The beautiful weather of the past week or so has been extremely favorable for the many tennis players who may be found each afternoon at Peters park. A number of the players are already masters of this fascinating game, while many of the beginners give evidence of skill which will soon make them experts. Several spectators each afternoon give evidence of the interest and pleasure to be derived from watching the players. To persons who know little or ing the players. To persons who know little or nothing of the game, the knowledge that a skill-ful wielder of the racquet can do as much with a tennis ball as with a billiard ball, is a surprising piece of information.

A very interesting programme, given below, was rendered vesterday by the Mallon society of the Girls' High school. After the completion of these exercises, short talks were made by Mr. Beattie,

WAYCROSS, Ga., March 28.—[Special.]—
State Secretary Jenner addressed the Young Men's Christian association this evening. Two hundred citizens were present. There were railroad men from each department of the service, engineers, firemen, machinists, roadway, section, yard men, office clerks and telegraphers. The Waycross Rifles attended in a body, in full uniform. Secretary Jenner was introducedt by President Stanton, and delivered an able address on the different phases of the work. He spoke feelingly to railroad men as one who had come from their ranks. At the close of his remarks, the two hundred men pledged themselves to sustain the work. An oyster supper was served by the ladies to the entire audience. The outlook for future interest in the work of the association is bright. The association has accomplished very much in its short life in Waycross, and has made its impress upon not a few lives for good, as well as the community at large. The Savannah, Florida and Western and the Brunswick and Western railroads are liberal contributors to the work. Secretary Jenner will be with the association until Monday. service, engineers, firemen, machinists, road-

The board of control of the fifth district Independent Order B'nai B'rith, met in annual ion in the home yesterday morning at 10

There was in attendance, Hon. Simon Wolf. of Washington, president of the board; Joseph Hirsch, of Atlanta, vice-president; Henry Adler, of Washington, secretary and treasurer; J. I. Macks, Wilmington, N. C.; E. A. Weil, Savannah; Max Cohen, Washington, M. Daniel, Baltimore; C. H. Cohen, Augusta; Sol Weil, Goldsboro, N. C., and Colonel Samuel Weil. president of the district grand lodge, and members of the local board of managers.

The reports of the officers were read and appropriately acted upon.

The treasurer's report showed the total receipts during the past year to be $17,258.97, of which $15,414.72 was from cash donations, and $1,844.25 from lodges, being a per capita tax of one dollar per member. Mr. Joseph Hirsch, chairman of the building committee, presented the final report of the committee, giving the entire cost of the buildings and grounds, at the date of dedicatio $62,000. Mr. Hirsch also presented the report of the local board of managers, showing the entire business portion of the management of the board during the past twelve months The expense of management as shown by the report was

Mr. R. A. Sonn, the superintendent, presented an interesting report, embracing a number of recommendations for the coming year, all tending to the improvement in the management of the home.

At 12:30 p. m. the board adjourned and reassembled at 2 p. m.

At the afternoon session, the various reports and recommendations were discussed and acted upon, among the most important being a code of rules for the admission of children.

The board elected the local board of managers for the ensuing year, consisting of Hon. Joseph Hirsch, chairman, Aaron Haas, H. nheim, Fred Schiff, Morris Adler, David Kaufmann and Louis Newelt.

This is the entire board of the past year, except Mr. H. Franklin, who declined a re-election, Mr. Newelt being elected in his place.

Among the cash donations, as above re-ported, is one of ten thousand dollars, a legacy from the late Isaac May, of this city, which is in addition to a similar amount contributed by Mr. May, during his life time, to the building.

The board tendered a letter of sympathy to Mrs. Brandt, on the death of her husband, Colonel Adolph Brandt.

During the morning session, the board pre-sented Mr. Hirsch with a set of resolutions as a token of their appreciation for his untiring zeal and energy in behalf of the home, as chairman of the building committee. The resolutions are a magnificent work of art, and were presented by Hon. Simon Wolf, the president of the board. At 4 p. m. the board closed its labors for the day and adjourned. The members of the board of control expressed themselves much pleased at the management of the home during the past year,, especially at the able efforts of the superinten

the final arguments in the Chaney case, yesterday, at the library.

The litigation arose out of the crooked transactions of Mr. Floyd Chaney. In 1887, Mr. Chaney burst upon Atlanta in the character of a financial comet of great magnitude. He represented himself as a man of great influence, with countless northern capital at his back. He was plausible, and people believed him. Some gentlemen tried to interest the northern capitalist in the future of Salt springs. He pretended to look into the matter, and then boldly asserted that he would make the springs the great watering place of the south, which would even eclipse Saratoga.

Among his dupes was Mrs. Butler. She sold out her property and gave him the proceeds, mounting to $14,000, to invest. With some o it he built a cottage of great beauty at Salt

Suddenly a rumor gained currency that Chaney was not all that he pretended to be.

Mrs. Butler went to him and demanded her money. He was unable to return it and in part payment he gave her a deed to the Salt Springs cottage. Two days later he fled and has not since been heard of.

It soon transpired that numerous liens were held against the cottage by the builders, by the carpenters, and even by the laborers. An attempt was made to sell the property, but Mr. Fulton Colville and Mr. Albert Cox, acting for Mrs. Butler, secured an injunction acting for Mrs. Bittler, secured an injunction and prevented the sale.

Mr. Roberts, for the past three days, has been listening to the testimony of the parties interested in the case. He will make a report at the July term of the Douglasville court to Judge Richard Clark. It is probable that an appeal will be taken and the case will possibly reach the supreme court before it is finally decided.

You may sing of the beauty of springtime
That glows on the cheek of the young,
But I sing of a beauty that's rarer
Than any of which you have sung.
The beauty that's seen in the faces
Of women whose summer is o'er.
The autamu-like beauty that charms us
Far more than the beauty of yore.

But this beauty is seen too rarely. The faces of most women lose the beauty of youth too soon. Female disorders are like frosts which come to nip the flowers which betoken good health, without which there can be no beauty. If our American women would fortify themselves against the approach of the terrible disorders so prevalent among them, by using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescriptions, their good looks would be retained to a "sweet old age." Musin Grand Concerts. The greatest musical event in years will be the first appearance here of the greatest of all living violinists, Mons. Ovid Musin. The Memphis Daily Commercial of February 14th, in an editorial, speaks of this noted artist in the following praise

It is no discredit to the artists who accompany him, to separate Musin from them for mention in this place. When, a few days ago, we reminded our readers that he was to appear at the first concert of the Wagner club this season, we warned them that he would be a surprise, and that he would surprise the coolest and most sober judges, and take them by storm. And this he did last night. His first number carried the house, which greeted him with very earnest applause, and the encores in which he indulged it, in response to the most persistent calls, increased and intensified the feelings he aroused. And so he went on to the final number, in which he appeared with the singers, mounting higher and higher until he shut out all memory of other masters of the king of instruments who had preceded him. Musin's distinguishing quality is his striking individuality, that on occassiom is hightened by an intense nature responsive to every mood from the dividuality, that on occassion is hightened by an intense nature responsive to every mood from the most wooling and tender carresses to the advancing ipassion of a storm-swept soul. He is controlled and inspired by every theme he takes, and yielded himself to them, quite satisfied that his fingers and his bow will mark fifs perfect work. Musin possesses genius, genius guided by art, and an art the facility in which he has acquired only by the closest application through years of study. What now seems easy to him he attained to by painful processes, and slow, by methodical courses that, straining his temper, also curbed his ardor. But this was the ordeal by fire that, once passed through, enabled him to realize the strength and uses of these pent-up forces, and build a bridge to the height whereon he stands a raphsodie in himself.

George Blackstock, residing on Luce street, near

George Blackstock, residing on Luce street, near West Fair street, had suffered from rheumatism and neuralgia for over one year, affecting every part of his body. He applied to Dr. Evans, who cured him by four magnetic treatments.

Reference is also made to the following prominent business gentlemen of the city. Captaln M. T. Castleberry, residence 164 West Peters street; Mr. J. J. Barnes, commission merchant, place of business 18 South Forsyth street; Mr. Joseph Lender, restauranter, 23 Marietta street; Mr. A. W. Mc-Candless, photographer, 35 Proyr street, and numerous others.

Jonn McGarry, a lad of thirteen years, who resides at 166 Thompson street, stated that he had been a constant sufferer from asthma since he was two years old, that much of the time he could not lie down in bed, and at no time was he free from the distressing disease. He could not bringing on the most terrible spasm of suffocation. All this, he said, was changed. Now he could sleep well, he had no cough or difficulty of breathing, and could and had ran ten blocks that very morning, without causing the slightest symptom of asthma or difficulty in breathing. He said the doctor had only given him five treatments. Mrs. Mary Lindsey stated that she resides at 28 Fornwalt street, that she was first treated by Dr. Evans two weeks ago for deafnees of eight years standing. When she first went to the doctor her right ear was almost if not entirely deaf, and the hearing in the left ear was almost as good as it ever was.

Mrs. C. S. Wallace residing in West End near

That she had received but six treatments from the doctor and her hearing was almost as good as it ever was.

Mrs. C. S. Wallace residing in West End near the new church, stated that she had been a great sufferer from catarrh, also, dyspepsia in its worst form, that she first applied to Dr. Evans three weeks ago, and was now entirely free from her ailments. Not a vestige of her catarrh or dyspepsia remained and that she had gained several pounds in flesh and felt like a new woman. She stated that she had received only six magnetic treatments at the doctor's hands.

Dr. Evans makes a specialty of the treatment of all diseases of the rectum, etc. In these diseases his treatment is entirely new and specific, and is indorsed by such men as Professor Parta, of Chicago,; Logan, of St. Louis; Professor Wyman, of New York; Professor Morrow, New York, and all the specialists of the age in this line of diseases. Dr. Evans also cures cancer in less time and with less pain than by any other method known. He cures all female complaints without the use of instruments or exposure of person. He cures fissure, fistula, stricture and ulceration of the bowels without the use of the knife, or other painful treatment. He cures piles without pain to the patient or detention from business.

Dr. Evans will treat the sick free of charge at Knights of Honor hall, corner Broad and Alabama streets every Saturday morning from 10 to 11 o'clock during his stay in the city, which will be for a considerable time to come.

He can be consulted at his pariors, 34 North Forsyth street, from 10 a. m. until 7 p. m., of each day. Consultation free. Dr. Evans is not to be classed with ordinary magnetic healers. He is a graduate of two different schools of medicine, as is shown by his diplomas, which ornament his reception rooms.

CALHOUN,
[Ordinary] COMPOUND LARD.

R. M. FRANK TALKS ABOUT THE CONGER BILL.

It Is Vicious Legislation and Will Seriously Injure the Farmers of the South-Western Lard Exposed.

Mr. M. Frank, of Columbus City, is deeply versed in all that pertains to the lard interests of the country. He is general manager of numerous compound lard factories, and he has made a special study of the Conger bill, now hetere congress, and thoroughly understands the effect it would have should it become a Intalking over the subject, yesterday, Mr. Frank said:

"I have been engaged in the cotton seed oil business nearly fifteen years, and am inter-ested in various oil mills in this and other seted in various considerable effort we succeeded in killing the Dawes bill, a twin sister of the Conger bill, before the agricultural committee some two years ago."

"What do you think of the Conger bill?"

"Like the Dawes bill it is vicious legisla-tion, as it places a valuable food product under the control of the internal revenue department, a branch of the government which everybody admits should not be extended." "Don't you think manufacturers of lard containing other ingredients than actual fat from the heg should be required to brand it properly?"

"Certainly, and ever since the introduction of the Dawes bill, two years ago, the manu-facturers of lard in which cotton seed oil is a component part, have distinctly branded their component part, have distinctly branded their product 'compound lard,' thus putting buyers and consumers upon notice."

"But it is claimed that the farmer needs the proposed protection because one important product of the farm (the hog) is being injured by the competition of this so-called 'counterfeit product."
"The farmer is more interested in encour-

"The farmer is more interested in encour-aging the compound lard than in repressing it, because more products of the farm enter into because more products of the farm enter into it than into heg lard; namely, beef fat, lard and cotton seed oil, and any discrimination against cotton seed oil products is directly injurious to the farmers of the south, who relies upon the sale of cotton seed for a part of his yearly profit. The bill in question will benefit the hog packer only and not the farmer, who are, in a sense, natural enemies: the packer seeking to pay the lowest price and the farmer wishing to receive the highest price for hogs; and any bill which the packer desires must be looked upon with suspicion." "You intimate that the packers are the chief promoters of this legislation?"

"Decidedly they are; that is an open secret.
The so-called pure lard packers are trying to The so-called pure lard packers are trying to gain an unfair advantage over their trade competitors, the manufacturers of compound lard, and thus by hampering them with oppressive taxes and internal revenue regulations, will not only ruin the business of the latter, but will also tend largely towards destroying the cotton seed oil industry of the south, for the tax proposed is equivalent to six cents per gallon on the cotton seed oil used in the manufacture of compound lard. If any bill regulating the sale of lard is required, it should be one compelling the packer of pure lard (whose revolting methods in the manufacture are so well known, and were so thoroughly exposed by the congressional investigation) to brand his lard by naming the parts of the hog from which it is made."

"Can you suggest any compromise legisla-

'Can you suggest any compromise legisla-"Can you suggest any compromise legislation?"
"Yes, sir. We favor a general pure food bill, such as has been presented to the present congress, but oppose all special bills; and in this connection I would say that it is a remarkable fact that editors and public men who have been posing before the agricultural committee as the farmers' friend during the consideration of the Conger bill have notably neglected to give the pure food bills now before congress any support whatsoever. The whole matter is so plain that a blind man can bee it. It's a lobby in the interest of the pork packers. If the general government is to assume paternal functions over what we cat and drink, let us have a pure food law, patterned after the English, which covers bread, coffee, tea, sugar, flour, spices, wines, beers, liquors, drugs, etc., and refrain from all special legislation of which the Conger bill is a sample, and will fall heaviest on the south.
I trust that our representatives in congress will Is a sample, and will fall neaviest on the south.

I trust that our representatives in congress will not only oppose this bill, but also advocate a general pure food law, which would protect by ery citizen without being unjust or sec tional."

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular. NEW YORK, March 28—[Special.]—Foreign advices are very despairing to holders of cotton, as the actual sales of the week show the daily reports to have been exaggerated and that spinners are again pursuing a hand-to-mouth policy, buying delta the sale and the sale a daily only their actual requirements. Receipts at the ports of the interior towns exceed the esti-mates, but the loss in stock is very large and the actual movement from the plantations is barely half of last season. This, together with slightly better advices from Manchester, caused our mar-ket to rally even before the receipt of the closing advices from Liverpool. But the trading is light, and one prominent house was supposed to be sell-ing for the first against a line of cotton held here In store for some time past. Our advices from Liverpool report a similar condition of the mar-kets abroad. The close of the market has been effected by buying to offset the market here. No estimate has as yet been received from New Orleans for tomorrow's receipts.

HUBBARD, PRICE & Co. The Women Praise B. B. B.

The suffering of women certainly awakens the sympathy of every true philanthropist. Their best friend, however, is B. B. B. (Botcnic Blood Balm). Send to Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga., for proofs H. L. Cassiday, Kenneson, Ga., writes: "Thre bottles of B. B. B. cured my wife of Scrofula."

Mrs. R. M. Laws, Zalaba, Fla., writes: "I have never used anything to equal B. B. B." Mrs. C. H. Gay, Rocky Mount, N. C., writes: "Not a day for fifteen years was I free from head ache. B. B. entirely relieved me. I feel like another person."

James W. Lancaster Hawkinsville, Ga., writes "My wife was in bad health for eight years. Five doctors and many patent medicines had done her no good. Six bottles of B. B. B. cured her.

Mrs. S. Tomlinson, Atlanta, Ga., says: "For years I suffered with rhenmatism, caused skidney trouble and indigestion, I also was feeble and nervous. B. B. B. relieved me at once, although several other medicines had failed."

"Rev. J. M. Richardson, Clarkson, Ark., writes "My wife suffered twelve years with rheumatism and female complaint. A lady member of my church had been cured by B. B. B. She persuaded my wife to try it, who now says there is nothing like B. B. as it quickly gave her relief." 1w

CHIEF SURGEON A. G. LANE.

SAN PEDRO, New Mexico, March 20.—Mr. W.
A. Hemphill, Atlanta Constitution, and Fellowcomrades, Atlanta, Ga.: Man should seek for happliness in study, duty, labor and exalted pleasures, with a constant effort to find it. We must all seek it, not only in domestic and business life, but in the relations we hold to our fellow-men, and in the grand opportunity you have afforded for discipline and self-sacrifee in the beneficent blending of honor and joy among the living, with sorrow for the illustrious dead on "Memorial Day."

It will be refreshing to recount the great men and noble women whose lives of usefulness did so much for the alleviation of human misery from 1860 to 1865. We shall, then and there, realize that human life is but vapor gilded by a sunbeam, a reflection of heaven in the waters of earth—that the sun as swiftly descends to its setting as it rose to its noon—that human forms which so rapidly matured in grace, strength, beauty and manily attributes of character are now bowed by weight of years—the elasticity of youth giving way to the measured steps and careful tread of age, and

My heart and prayers are with you all, and my coming is one of inance only, hence you will please advise me by return mail what will be the cost of a ticket by raitroad and return to Los Cerillos, New Mexico, Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad. I would like to go via Austin, Texas, and see my only brother and have him go.

ALEXANDER G. LANE.

GENERAL R. M. GANO.

DALLAS, Tex., March 26.—Mr. W. A. Hemphill, Secretary of Committe.—Dear Sir: Your kind invitation to attend Memorial Day at Atlanta, on the 26th of April, is received. I fear it will be out of my power to do so. My daughter marries on the 23d of April, and that will be a grand event in our family, and much preparation will probably prevent my coming. But I will come if possible.
Truly yours, R. M. GANO, ex-Brig. Gen. C. S. A.

The Ladies Auxiliary .- The Ladies Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian association held a of the Young Men's Christian association held a call meeting at the building yesterday afternoon. The president, Mrs. W. A. Hemphill, occupied the chair. The object of the meeting was to take action with regard to the annual meeting of the association, which takes place April 8th. The meeting was a harmonious one. It was unanimously decided to entertain the membership on that evening and to give a members' tea. An elegant affair may be anticipated.

Mrs. John H. James was appointed chairman of the committeen on arrangements.

Burmah and the Burmese .- A lecture on this subject will be delivered in Atlanta, Easter Monday, for the benefit of St. Andrew's Brotherhood, by Mr. James Irving Crabble, of New York, representing "The Church Year." Mr. Crabble is an able lecturer, and will doubtless be found very iteresting indeed on the subject he has chosen.

A Doctor's Testimony.—A prominent Atlanta surgeon had rather a peculiar experience a few days since. He was summoned by both plaintiff and defendant to give expert testimony in a suit and defendant to give expert testimony in a suit brought by a negro to obtain damages from the city. When the negro was first hurt this particular doctor was sent for to attend him, and when this suit was brought the plaintiff's attorney summoned him as a witness. When the attorney came to question the doctor, he found out something he didn't want to know. He dropped that doctor in a hurry. The haste with which this was done aroused the suspicion of the other side, and the aroused the suspicion of the other side, and the result was that when the case came for trial this week, the doctor's testimony strongly indorsed the city's theory.

THE FIRST PAYMENT

MADE BY THE PURCHASERS OF THE OLD CAPITOL.

The Messrs. Venable Buy Major Kiser's Interest-This Means That the City Will Not Buy.

The first installment for the purchase of the state capitol amounting to $62,750, was paid into the state treasury yesterday.

The gentlemen who paid the money were Messrs. Joel Hurt, James D. Collins, W. R. Venable, and Sam Venable. It was early in the morning when the party, accompanied by Dr. Willson, who auctioned off the property, entered the executive department and announced to Judge Nesbitt that they were the present owners of the old capitol, and that they wished to pay the first half of the purchase money. They also explained that Mr. M. C. Kiser had disposed of his interest in the building to the Messrs. Venable.

After some preliminaries Judge Nesbitt re-ceived the $62,750 in certified checks, and immediately turned it over to State Treasurer Hardeman.

In return the gentlemen received a receipt stating that half the amount due the state had been paid, and a title would be given when the final payment was made. Two joint notes were then given to the treasurer, each one for $31,275, payable in one and two years, and bearing interest at eight per Before leaving the capitol, the subject of insurauce on the building was mentioned to the purchasers, and Judge Nesbitt made another $500 for the state. The state held policies fully paid up, which will not expire for another year. These the new purchasers accepted on condition that the insurance companies will permit the transfer. There is no reason to suppose that any objection will be made. The amount agreed on

Dr. Willson's fees for conducting the auction were something over $500, and he re-ceived a warrant for the amount before leaving the building.

He Has Sold Out.

Major M. C. Kiser turned over his interest n the old capitol purchase to Hon. W. H. Venable and his brother, Mr. S. H. Venable, yesterday morning.

The trade was consummated in a very short time, and not much ado about it. Mr. Venable came into his office and offered him $5,000 for his interest in the purchase, and Major Kise accepted the offer.

His reasons for selling were that he is engaged in erecting a large building, and did not care to be troubled with the other business. This leaves Mr. Joel Hurt, Mr. J. D. Collins and Mr. W. H. Venable and Mr. Sam Venable proprietor of the building, and it will remain in their hands, unless it is purchased

MADISON, GA.—Stuart Manufacturing Company, Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: I have been a sufferer from kidney troubles, such as diabetes, etc., ever since the war. In fact, I have been almost a con-firmed invalid since that time. I tried all the doctors and patent medicines I could hear of without benefit.

I saw the advertisement of your Stuart's Gin and Buchu and tried it, and have taken a number of bottles of it. I am a well man for the flost time in twenty years. I saw that this terrible trouble, passing blood, etc., was gradually killing me. I feel very grateful to you for putting it in my way to be restored to perfect health again. GEORGIA RAILROADS.

CHANGE OF SCHEDULE ON THE CENTRAL NEXT SUNDAY.

orgia Midland-Macon and Birminghan Alabama Midland-The Rome Extension-Rallroad Gossip

A general change of schedule goes into effect next Sunday on the Central railroad. On and after that date there will be four daily trains each way.

The first leaves here at 7 a. m., for Savannah; the next at 11:30 a. m., for Macon; at 2:15 p. m., for Albany; and at 7:20, for Savannah.

They arrive at 7 a. m., 11 a. m., 5:40 p. m., and 10:20 p. m. The Georgia Midland.

It is believed that the Georgia Midland meeting at Conyers Wednesday will result in the early extension of the road.

And it seems as if Athens has a better chance now than it ever had before to secure the road.

The meeting was called by General Manager Gunby Jordan.

The route most probable now is from Mc-Donough by Conyers, Walnut Grove, Monroe and High Sheals to Athens. A fine commit-tee was appointed to begin active operations. Governor McDaniel and B. S. Walker are the Monroe members of the committee.

Alabama Midland.
The track of the Midland is laid through from Bainbridge to Montgomery, but the heavy rains of last week caused several washouts, and the work of surfacing the track has not been finished. It is expected, however, that this work will be finished in a few weeks, and that through trains will be put on some time about April 15th. The question as to the point where change of crews will be made has not yet been decided. Thomasville possesses the advantage of being almost exactly equi-distant between Montgomery and Savan-

Macon and Birmingham.

The negotiations pending between the Macon and Birmingham railroad and the city of LaGrange as to the right-of-way and term facilities in the city, terminated Wednesday, and the whole matter was arranged in a way satisfactory to all parties concerned. This settlement shows that the whole cost to the city in the premises will not exceed $5,000 much, if any. It is well understood by the contracting railroad parties that a splendid union passenger depot is to be located just south of the old depot.

Trains will be running to Culloden, Monroe ounty, by May 1st, and within a few months will also be running into LeGrange.

The Rome Road Extension

The Cherokee Advance says of the extension of the Rome railroad: "The road will ultimately be extended from Canton to Gainesville, or some other point on the Air-Line, and thence to Augusta. One of the objects in oming to Canton is that such an easy and cheap outlet can be had to a connection with the Richmond and Danville, and that it would open up and develop such a magnificent country from Kingston on through Cherokee and adjoining counties.

In this connection we would advise our Gainesville friends to keep their eyes open and work, for it is just possible the road will miss them just far enough to mere or less hurt their town. The road is going to be built,"

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: As your paper has given such prominence to the article of I. V. Murray by republishing in your columns his recent fulminations, I, as one of the officeholders under the present administration, have this to say in regard to his statements reflecting seriously upon the character and independence of all white men holding office under the present national adminis tration in Georgia. I ask space to say a few words in refutation of the wholesale charges he has made.

in refutation of the wholesale charges he has made.

1. I am a depur marshal appointed by Colonel Buck as a democrat and holding my commission as such, and without having secured or sought the position through or by the influence of any negro politician or leader, and am under no obligations to any such character; and have used no pecuniary means to attain or retain said position. No pledge to support the republican party has been required of me or obtained from me. On the contrary, I was appointed by the marshal having full knowledge of the fact that I was a democrat and would so remain as long as the national parties retained their present positions. If there has ever been any social equality or catering to the negro by the marshal's force, I have certainly not noticed or participated in the same. It was but natural for Mr. Murray to do the same, or think others were doing it, as he had secured, as he admits, his position through said sources.

When it reaches the point that I have to obtain secared, as he admits, his position through saud sources.

When it reaches the point that I have to obtain an office through bribery, my official life will cease and I would never beg at the sear-fifee of principle. Being now in office, I feel the charges such as have been made should not go unchallenged. Your paper being read in different parts of the state by my friends—and their good opinion is more to me than any petty office—in justice to myself, and representing myself alone, I ask the publication of this card.

I am a resident of Hartwell, Hart county, Georgia, and an always at home except when away on official business.

NOTES ABOUT THE CAPITOL.

The first quarterly returns of special taxes for the year 1890 were received at the comptroller-general's department yesterday. Every mail for the next few days will contain a quantity of these returns, and as a receipt has to be made out for each one, Captain Furlow will have his work cut out for him. The returns for the first quarter of each year are larger than those of the three remaining quarters put together. The reason is that the law requires the payment of all special taxes at the beginning ning of the year or at the time of beginning business, and all specially taxed houses are started at the first of the year.

Colonel J. O. Waddell received a notice yes terday from the Marietta Marble works, stat-ing that the 206 head-stones for the confeder-ate soldiers' graves on Johnston's island, were ready and were waiting his orders to be shipped. Colonel Waddell wrote by the return mail directing that the head-stones be sent immediately to Sandusky, Ohio. He also wrote to Mr. T. J. Mack, of the Sandusky Register, notifying him of the shipment, and requesting him to see that they are placed in

The members of the committee who have had charge of the soldiers' graves at Johnston's island have been tireless in their endeavors te get the stones in position. All the expenses have been paid except $40, which sum is now in Colonel Waddell's hands, ready for a draft from the Marietta Marble works, whenever they draw on him.

A further sum of $125 is, however, needed to pay for the transportation and setting of the head-stones. The committee is desirous of raising the money as soon as possible, and they will be grateful for any subscriptions which can be sent, either to the chairman of the Confederate Veterans' association, or to Colonel John O. Waddell, at the agricultural depart

Not one physician in a thousand has ever succeeded in relieving a person suffering from weak and wasting or consumptive kidneys, yet they continue to experiment, and after the death of their patient ask for their fee. The kidney is a delicate organ, and yet good health in a large measure depends upon its proper action. Let the kidneys become sore or inactive, and uric acid is eliminated from the effect upatter that passes too slowly out of or inactive, and uric acid is eliminated from the effete matter that passes too slowly out of the system. From this cause arises many mysterious pains in the back, side, shoulder joints and limbs. A feeling of ennui comes over the victim. The world seems dark and gloomy. The nerves become shattered; suicide is contemplated, and one's condition is mest pitable. Dr. Bull's Sa.saparilla contains such herbal juices as weak kidneys demand.
It has relieved and cured many cases that doctors gave up as hopeless. It checks decay, and aids the kidneys in a performance of their natural function.

The old darky's words had a rather chilly effect upon me, notwithstanding I tried to throw them off lightly. "Yes'm, hit must be ghosts. 'Fo de Lawd missus, de fokes sez hit mus'," and the old auntie paused in her sweeping to catch the sound of a mouse running across the floor of the loft above.

Without her uncanny references to the without her ancatury references to the presence of the supernatural the old house, with its wide damp halls and musty smalling closets, would have been anything but inviting. No one had lived in it for a long time, and its bare appearance would have been another to superst charts to a superstiff. enough to suggest ghosts to a superstitious mind.

All around the house the grass had grown up rank and tall, and since the old negress had mentioned it, the wind seemed to moan disnatly through the tops of the great oak trees that overhang the roomy old country house.

I was not at all afraid of ghosts. Nobody is for that matter—until they see them. So I told the old negro woman to hush her silly talk, and was soon so busied in putting things in order that I thought no more about ghosts or anything else but my household affairs. Every once in a while, though, a slight shiver passed over me, accountable to just what I don't know. Probably to the sense of being almost alone in that rambling, gloomy old We were only just moving in. The hou stood a short distance from the town, within a stone's throw of what had once been a large college, where students from all parts of the country attended in the days of its usefulness and popularity. But the man who owned the college was dead, and it had long since ceased to resound with the subdued hun of the students' voices. The college had suc cumbed to the ravages of the dread scourge The master and many of his pupils died with it, and since then the old school building had

The oid negro woman whom we had hired to clean up and help us move in had been raised in the neighborhood, and was full of stories about the old house and the people who tried to live in it and were driven away by strange noises that were heard at the dead hour of

As soon as she came the old woman began telling her mysterious tales, and before the first day wore away, I had heard them all. I did not believe in them very much, and so kept them to myself, not repeating what I had heard to my husband when he arrived late in the evening with the last load of household

A few days after we were well settled down in our new home, John was suddenly called away on business, to be gone a week or more. I had never mentioned the ghost stories to him, and so far we had had no visits from our uncanny lodger, if we had any.

My sister was sent for, to keep me company in John's absence, and arrived two or three days before his departure.

Ghosts were not mentioned to her, of course as I did not care to make her uneasy or cause her any unpleasantness. The second morning after her arrival she came to me and complained that she did not like to sleep in the room which she had been given.

"I don't know why," she said, "but I have such a strange feeling, and both nights have been awakened by a peculiar noise." "What does it sound like?" I asked, no without a show of uneasiness. "I don't know. I can hardly describe it, but

It sounds like the rocking to and fro of a heavy chair on the floor above." "Oh, it's just because it's a strange room," said I, "you'll sleep all right tonight. If not. Next morning my sister again complained of being awakened by the same strange noise exactly at the same hour-about 1 o'clock "I'll have the loft above cleared out today; it must have been rats," I said. The loft was cleared out, but John, going away that day, forgotten for the time.

One evening during John's absence we were visited by one of our new neighbors. In the course of conversation Mr. Hall, our visitor, yded with students and the head master

"A dreadful scourge which was sweeping over the country laid hold of the students, and many of them died. Some are buried in the little wood yonder beyond the college building. Some died before their friends could reach them. The horror was awful while the scourge lasted. When it dended there were almost none left at their desks, and since then no one has ever tried to

"Well, one day the dread fever appeared here in the master's household. A young man from Texas, a bright, happy young fellow, the idol of a fond father and loving mother, was the first victim. From the first he knew there was no lope of his recovery, and only hoped and praved that he might live until his mother and father could reach him.
"The young man occupied the room across the hall, yonder," continued the old gentleoning to the room where the strange sounds had been heard.

I began to feel very uncomfortable, and involuntarily drew my chair closer to Lucy's, as I glanced at her face, upon which was mirrored thoughts as nervously agitated as my

After this story, every day was a terror and every night a horror. And naturally we did not prove very good tenants.

Remarkable Luck in Bets From the Baltimore Sun. Remarkable Luck in Bets.

From the Baltimore Sun.

A remarkable case of gambling luck occurred in a Baltimore race pool-room on Saturday, A member of a large grain and flour firm now and then tries to pick out a winner of the races received a valentine Friday, which was the unique production of a lady who knew his fondness for lasting on races. The tenor of the verses was to the effect that he had better play the seventh horse on the board for every race, as the judgment would be equally as sensible as trying to play the horses on their previous performances and their supposed present form. The merchant took the cue, after the manner of all gambiers, from the humble crap player to the high-priced plunger, and though his judgment and the general opinion of the public and bookmakers was that tile seventh horse was, in most of the six races at Guttenberg, a "rank duffer," he showed his valentine and asked what odds they would lay on a combination all six horses to win. Seven hundred dollars to one dollar were laid willingly, as it was hardly possible that even one of the horses would win. The merchant put $2 against $1,400 and was laughed at for doing so. The first race was at five furlongs, and there were ten starters. Bass Viol was number seven on the board. He won. The second race was at seven furlongs and had eleven starters. King Idler was the seventh on the slate. He won. The third race was at sit furlongs and had ten starters. Paradise was number seven. He won. The fourth race was at one mile, with six starters. Walnoo headed the list on the board and, by counting down, the grain merchant had to go to the top again for his seventh acree. Walnoo Waloo headed the list on the board and, by counting down, the grain merchant had to go to the top again for his seventh aorse. Wahoo won. As the merchant was also playing the horses straight on each race, the others in the room 'got on to his curves,' as it were, and began to take stock in his valentine and to play the horses. The operator in singing out the descriptions of the races as they were run instead of giving names to horses designated the winner as number seven, and each time that he sang out the number it was greeted with applause. The fifth race was at one and a quarter miles and had five starters. Switt was number two on the board, and by the valentine count was number seven. He won. The sixth and last race, which was at seven furlongs, was to decide the bet, was exciting, as by this time the betters, loungers and other people who had heard of the affair crowded into the people work to hear the result even the result. and other people who had heard of the affair crowded into the pool room to hear the result. There were nine starters. Alva was number seven on the board. He got away in the lead and was never headed, winning the valentine bet and a pot of money for the man who made it and fer others who followed him. Every favorite on the board was beaten, four short horses had won. While the odds of $700 to $1, which the bookmakers laid, look enor-mous, a glance at the odds as laid against each individual seventh horse on the board will show how much the advantage of the transaction the hockmakers had. Had the better started with $2 and played it straight through, the result would have been as follows: In the first race odds of $10 to $1 were offered that Bass Viol would not win. Two deliars would have nexted $22. in lows: In the first race odds of $10 to $1 were offered that Bass Viol would not win. Two dollars would have netted $22 in return. The $22 could then have been placed against the next seventh horse, King Idler, at odds of $3 to $1, which would have netted $86, which at odds of $6 to $1 laid against Paradise would have netted $616. This at $8 to $1, which was against Wahoo, would have realized $5,544, which at $10 to $1, the odds against $5 wift. would have netted $66,984. This, at $5 to $1, Alva's odds, would have made for the better a grand total of $395,904. But this is what might have been. As it was, the bookmaker only paid him $1,402. The odds were figured on the track bids, whereas if the odds as laid by Baltimore bookmakers, which were somewhat higher on several of the horses, had been followed, his winnings would have been very perceptibly increased. The merchant is credited with having won besides this bet, over $1,000 or playing the horses straight. The bet is considered the most remarkable on record, not because the amount worked by the beautiful transporter.

markable on record, not because the amount won was large, but because of the seemingly "rank outsiders" which won and the peculiar tip which led to make the play.

Mother of a Fine Boy.

Three months before my babe was born, I was advised to use "Mother's Friend." I procured a bottle, which relieved me so much that I continued its use. My physician and nurse say mine was the most re they ever witnessed. At 10 o'clock I was in the parlor playing on the piano, feeling per-fectly well, and by 2 o'clock the mother of a fine boy. My recovery was rapid. I used "Mother's Friend" on my breasts, as directed, and had no trouble with them whatever.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange. NEW YORK, March 28.-Today in the stock mar-

NEW YORKS, MARCE 28.-Today in the stock mar-ket was the dullest of the phenomenally dul week, and while there was the greatest indisposi-tion to trade on either side of the account, advo-cates of lower figures, encouraged by the disasters reported this morning, were enabled to force off prices in small fractions, and in some few special-ties material losses were sustained. The approach ties material losses were sustained. The approach of April settlements gives the bears a slight tem-porary advantage, but if there was any real scarcity of money it would have shown itself today when considerable sums of money are with-held, owing to the rule of the stock exchange, which makes all loans until Monday, and dis-bursements are expected to go through without causing any disturbance in the street. The strength in sterling exchange added to the feeling of depression somewhat today but houses with foreign connections say that by the middle of April foreigners will again be buyers in this market. It is also confidently expected that the investment fidently expected that the investment demand which usually makes its appearance from the fifth to fifteenth of April will be a foundation for permanent improvement in prices, and a marked increase in business. Dealings today furnlshed little ground for comment, but the disasnished little ground for comment, but the disasters reported this morning gave a bearish tinge to the feeling in the street, and almost everything opened off, Louisville and Nashville and Louisville, New Albany and Chicago, as was natural, showing the greatest losses. The downward movement, in the proposed dullness of the first hour went but little nusual duliness of the first hour went but little further, and an improvement was now inaugurated under the lead of the Missouri Pacific and sugar refineries. The upward movement was entirely insignificant, and dullness and stagnation ruled for the remainder of the day up to the last hour. The payment of a dividend on Chlcago gas by the Fidelity Trust company caused a great deal of talk, but no apparent effect upon the stock was made by it. The usual dividend upon Lackawanna fell flat, but reports that coal was being sold under schedule prices sagged all coalers, except Reading, off slightly. Late in the day the old stories of the new issue of bonds on the Erie were circulated and accompanied by a vigorous ons'aught upon the stock and second consols, both of which yielded, the latter mate-rially. The close of the market, however, was dull and stagnant at something under the first prices as a rule. Total sales, listed 93,000; unlisted 14,000

The Sun's Cotton Review. NEW YORK, March 28-Futures opened a little spressed by a weak report from Liverpool, but as that market steaded up, and as our port receipts proved to be largely at the expense of a great re-duction of stocks at the interior towns, and as our spot market turned dearer, we made a recovery, which is most decided in the early months and the next crop. The summer months show less strength.

Cotton on the spot was 1-16c higher. NEW YORK, March 28-The following is the Net receipts at all United States ports.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions. CHICAGO, March 28-Wheat-Trading was rather light today, and fluctuations of prices confined within narrow limits. Business was interfered with by the severe storm, the wires being down. The storm of snow, wind and sleet in Illinois, Kansas and Missouri was not considered favorable for the crop—in fact the weather pretty much all over the winter wheat district was rather unfavorable. The opening was the same as yesterday's closing, eased off 1/20%c, held firm, advanced to outside figures, again declined and closed about 3/20 lower for May and 1/20 lower for July than the closing figures of yestorday. Corn was inactive a greater part of the session and devoid of any important features. The mar-ket opened rather firm at yesterday's closing prices, but persistent offerings of May by a large local trader had a depressing effect, and the final quo tations were about the same as yesterday. Oats were moderately active, and prices averaged higher, but extreme outside figures maintained until the close:

Hog products—Outside of a moderate trade in mess pork and short rib sides the market attracted very little attention.
